and take advantage of summer

Summer is a time when you hang out with friends and look back on the year that is continually passing by. To reflect and find out what the next year is going to bring your way.

"I worked at the Food Bank of Northern Nevada, and I went on vacation. I did pretty much everything there is to do over the summer. [During summer vacation] I was excited [to come to high school] because their's so much more to do in high school then in middle school," said Danielle Lyons, 2009.

Summer, for a senior can be viewed as the last wait before becoming an adult, or the last chance to do something out of the ordinary. While wondering what the rest of their lives may hold.

"[My summer] was great, I had a lot of fun, and I didn't really worry about college until school started," said Sarah Nelson, 2006.

During the summer time you can choose your own destiny. No school could mean freedom, or summer school could mean less fun.

"It was fun, I stayed home and went to a Girl's camp. I went swimming a lot, and went to the movies. I went to San Francisco and it was awesome. I hated middle school and I wanted to get it out of my head, and start my new memories in high school," said Hadriana Raymundo, 2009.

Summer is a time to cherish memories and to be willing to make plenty more as the years go on.

Summer, is a time to have fun, take a break, and do all the things that couldn't be accomplished during school. Summer only comes once a year, it is filled wth lasting memories and times to treasure.

During the summer students hang out with friends, stay up late and sleep in 'til all hours of the afternoon.

are made all summer long

"During the summer, I would sleep in until about 11 o'clock or 12. I would go to the mall, the movies, and talk on the phone," said Hannah Sugui, 2009.

Not everybody got to sleep in though, there are those students who had to face the dreded words: summer school. Students have to wake up early to make up credits, and some just do it to get ahead.

"Over the summer, I took the leadership course. The reason why took it, is because I really wanted to be a part of the leadership class this year. It was hard, but it was long, and took time out of my days off," said Leslie Masterpool, 2007

Summer offers the opportunity for students to get a part time job and to make a little extra spending money.

"I worked at In-n-Out and Nevada Fitness, I would work at In-n-Out for about 6 to 8 hours a day, and got paid $9.25 an hour. I worked at Nevada Fitness for about 4 to 6 hours once a week, and made $6 an hour," said Tim Conzachi, 2007.

Students spend money on a variety of things.

"I spent over $1,000 over the summer. After every paycheck I went shopping at the mall. A lot of my money went to buying Pimp Juice. I bought clothes, CD's, jewlery, food, stuff for my car, gas, and other accesories," said Brittany Spikula, 2006.

Other students stayed at home but failed to escape the task of working.

"I had to make sure my room was clean, and the dishes were done everyday," said Veronica Verso, 2008.

From American Eagle to Hot Topic, there are many different fashions from these stores through out the halls. Girls with plastic barrettes and layers upon layers of shirts and tank tops and guys with tight fitting jeans and puffy jackets are what's in style today. A majority of these styles and ideas are alike where the others are different and unique. "I don't conquers desigs in the fashion war really like in style stuff because people should follow their own trends and be an individual and flaunt what they got...yeahh! But it's kind of catchy," said Krystyna Hunden, 2008.

Students can spend minutes to hours deciding on what they're going to wear that day.

"I pick out an outfit in the morning, and usually don't change my mind; it's how I'm feeling right then and there. I feel confident when I pick out a good outfit," Siena Cook, 2008.

Accessories, are one thing that makes an outfit and style unique. They can have a HUGE impact on the way students dress. There are some accessories that students couldn't live without.

"I think the accessory that I'd wear everyday, if I had it, would be my sisters boyfriends star belt buckle," Mary Magna, 2008.

Hairstyle is another way for students to express personality.

"I like more of the more natural colors and one wild color. Just make your hair look cool," said Kelsey McKechnie, 2007.

Students change their hair color depending on mood instead of style,

"It goes from brown, to blonde, to red. It all depends on what mood I'm in," said Nicole Figeley, 2007.

No matter what, seeing these different hair styles and colors make big impacts on students and express how lively and creative students can be.

"I go by my own style and hopefully 700 people won't have it, because not everyone has the same taste as I do..." said Lindzee Klaes, 2006.

Trendy styles are spread through out the halls, that are noticed by everyone. Taken and made into fashionably different styles. Making them our own.

for accesorizing and flawless style

Fashion has no limits, fears, or boundaries. It is all on the eye of the beholder. Fashion could mean a way to make a change in the world, show individuality, or just plainly be something that cover's your body.

"To me fashion is one of the most important things for a teenager. Personally, I wear anything that look's good, and I have to like it. I usually end up going to Anchor Blue, Macy's or Pac Sun," said Hieu Pham, 2008.

The fashion industry produces clothes that they think would appeal mainly to the teenage community.

"A lot of stuff that people wear here are the same brands/ labels. My style is like a BOHO sort of '60's and '70's nistalgia look. [To mix it up] I like to shop at Wet Seal, Dahlia's, Alloy, (which are both online stores), and Areopostal, " said Adrienne Hill, 2008.

Other people feel that fashion isn't about what you wear, but rather how you wear it.

"I think it's [silly] to go out and spend your money on something that is uncomfortable. No matter how they look. My styl is all about how it feels and if it's comfortable. If it's not comfortable I don't buy it," said Anna Glovac, 2008.

The newly enforced dress code limits several of the student's clothing choices. Compared to the previous year's, the school board has been slightly leaniant toward's dress code infractions. However this year the dress code is meant to be followed.

"This year you can still see some girls, mostly girls, wearing clothes that are against dress code. I guess that's their kind of style. I personally don't really have a style, but some of the one's that I see here are really, really weird. Like some people will have their hair all different colors, and other people will be wearing clothes that I've never seen before," said Rachel Minot, 2008.

Although fashion is a part of life it isn't the defining point. A fullfilled life can be achieved without having to stay up to date with the latest styles

What's your reason?

"My favorite part of church is going to youth group because I get to be a kid. Sometimes I get to go and have fun and other times I get to teach. I like teaching about God."
Dean Pereos, faculty

"My favorite part of church is getting to hang out with my friends, but also to know that I'm there for a better spiritual connection."
Jen Mercer, 2007

"My favorite part of church is when I go to Priesthood and Sunday school, and hold my teachings and am able to learn more and teach people."

A large number of students are involved in a church or youth group. Students have been involved in church or youth group since they were little while others are just starting. "I've been going to Victory City Church my whole life," said Willie Washington, 2008.

People who go tochurch or youth groupget involved in disscusions, games, and life lessons. Brittany Zucco, 2007, said,"My favorite part of youth group is the people who attend and the great discussions we have."

Funny stories sometimes come out of church or youth group. Megan Jimenez, geometry and algebra 1-2 teacher said," When I was really little my dad and I were sitting in the front row and I farted really loud, and it was really quiet so everyone heard it."

Churches and youth groups go on trips and go to festivals. Angelica Aparicio, 2007, went to one of those festivals and said, " We did Lifeteen World Event. All youth groups (Lifeteen) met up at Disney's California Adventure Park and spent 3 days there. It was a blast!"

There are many ways that students end up at youth group. " My friends are the ones that got me to go," say, Valesia Williams, 2007. Members are encouraged to bring friends along to youth group. "I brought my friends to youth group with me and they enjoyed it," said Kyle Mollenburg, 2008.

The leaders are as enjoyable as friends and peers. "The leader of our youth group, our priest, makes it fun and a learning experience too," said, Rebecca Roth, 2007.

Churches even have a dress code. "When we go to church we have to dress up and keep our bodies covered," said, Nicole Spalka , 2007.

Even though people go to the same curch they may have different belief systems. "It's reassuring to have my beliefs in certain situations and they are good things to have," said, Justin Anderson, 2007.

Church can be a the faith of each individual family and friend experience. "I go to church with my family on Sundays and to youth group with my friends on Wednesdays," said, Mariah Leary, 2008.

There are students involved with church groups and they ttry every day to follow their belief systems. Whether they attend with their friends or family, they still find a way to learn.

"I like my job, although I don't get paid as much as I want to, but I still like working with the people." Josh Kerr, 2006

" I think my job is cool, i get to eat all the pizza I want, and I get to meet people and talk to them." Roni Bashaw, 2006.

" I like my job, the best thing is to take a lunch break, but I always get in trouble." Michelle Hogan, 2006.

"I love my job for the simple fact that I am my own boss, I make the rules and sometimes break them! I also love working with different types of people." Brianna Kapsoff, 2006

. . . HarDwork

Trying to find time for school and maintaining a job can be a difficult task, yet a lot of students still find the time to do both. Some take it more seriously than others, and some just have a job to keep active, others feel it's a hands on experience offering a chance to learn something new.

"My job helps prepare me for my future although I don't need the money, It's still a good experience and I learn how to deal with money, cope with co-workers, and have patiens with the customers, It can be a difficult task, but you learn how to deal with it," Lauren Carter, 2007

Other students feel that having a job is a good way to learn how to open up to people.

Josh Chaves, 2007, said, " I feel that working at the movies is a good way for me to open up and meet new people, it prepares me for my future for that exact reason."

Some students feel that their job's prepare them for the real world and life after High School.

"Campbell costruction prepares me for my future because in the near future I would like to run my own construction business. I can see how the business is run and it gives me ideas of how I, myself, would like to run my own my own business." Said Sergio Tamayo, 2006

All though some go to work to get paid, others go because they enjoy the enviorment and feel like their co-workers are their family.

I work with my mom and I feel that It is a friendly enviorment, they are all like my family. I keep the files orginized and file papers for 2 hours everyday." Heather Kuutzer, 2007

Sometimes thimprortance of having a job is being able to work with all types of people including Family. "I look foward to going to work because I like my co-workers, and there are cute guys, besides the fact, it teaches me responsibility. It seems like I have to grow up faster than I want to!" Mayra Martinez, 2007.

Having a job in high school shows great responsibility. Going to school while having a job requires losts of time, patients, hard work, energy, and dedication. Still through exams, homworkwork, and after school always pays off in the end

. . . Activities

performances, and school spirit

Six times a year nearly 2,200 students cram into the gym searching for friends and a place to sit. The chaos comes to a halt when the members of R.O.T.C march to the center court with the American Flag and introduce the Star Spangled Banner. Each assembly features a different student vocalist.

"Being in front of that many people gave me an incredible feeling. It's [all] adrenaline and excitement with all eyes on you. I would do it again; it is something I love to do," said Jessica Lehmann, 2006, after singing at the welcome back assembly.

Scheduling a National Anthem singer is only one component in planning an assembly. The leadership class begins planning and choosing themes for assemblies and spirit week over the summer.

"We vote on a theme that will get the school involved," said Marriah Barkley, 2006.

Leadership uses skits, games and performances as a way to get more students involved. Each activity is chosen based on the time of year and the theme of the assembly.

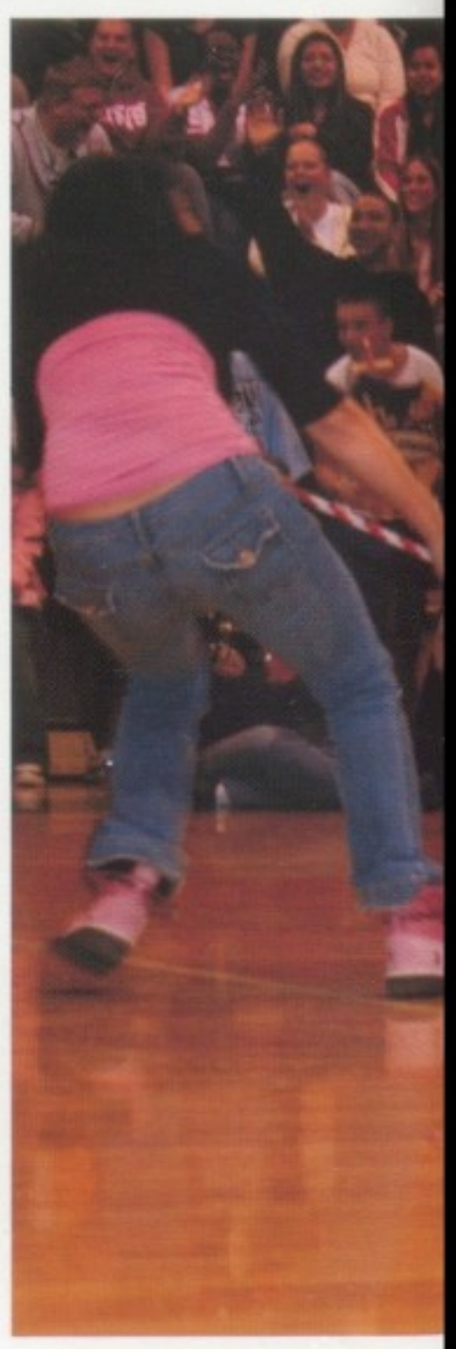
"I like the games and hanging out with my friends...the performances are the best part," said Heather Kutzer, 2007.

Assembly performances are not limited to students; teachers sometimes appear in skits as a way to increase school spirit and make them selves more visible to the student body.

"My favorite part [of the assemblies] is seeing the teachers making fools of them selves." said Jessica Whitcomb, 2008.

Overall, assemblies are something students look forward to. They offer a place for students to hang out with friends, laugh at teachers & to demonstrate school spirit.

"I love the assemblies! They give me time to show my Raider Pride and get Spirit points for my class. I like all the activities and I usually raise my hand to participate in them," said Steven Hammonds 2008.



"Preforming in front of the school is a rush; everyone yelling and screaming [with] the beat pumping through my veins. It's the best!"

for an out of this world homecoming

Dress-up days are not only for every Raider to show off excellent school spirit, but is a way for the students to support the school. It is not mandatory for everyone to get involved in Spirit Week, but when students do, it helps bring the school's moral up and to create a positive high.

"I think Spirit Week is a good idea, because it gets everyone pumped up to go to school to see our peers dressed-up all crazy and our school decorated in festive colors," said Megan Rohan, 2007.

This year the fall homecoming theme was Raider Invader; a theme based around space. Each day of Spirit Week had a space inspired theme, which was incorporated into the dress-up days.

"I enjoyed our theme, it was a very well thought out theme. If I had a choice, I would choose an Under-the-Sea theme. That would be nice," said student council member Josh Burkardt, 2007.

Throughout the week students dressed in suits and shades, sported team jerseys, strapped on chaps and spurs, pulled out their space suits and decked out in blue and gold to show Raider spirit.

"My favorite day was 'Men In Black' day, because I figured out how to tie a suit tie all by myself, I was very proud," said Alexa Bernal, 2009.

No matter what day it was, the halls were bursting with spirit-decorated by every class.

"It is important to have Spirit Week, because it gets everybody included in all that Reed has to offer," said Cassie Pasley, 2006.

As homecoming approaches students prepare for spirit week, the homecoming assembly, and the homecoming game.

Candidates perform during the homecoming assembly from scenes of movies that go along with the homecoming theme.

"I picked a scene from Space Jam so we could have a dance off," said candidate Mariah Barkley, 2006.

The theme for fall homecoming was Raider Invader.

"The one I did was Men In Black, so I could get more people involved," said Nicki Joslyn, 2006.

As the homecoming candidates are getting ready for the crowning, students are showing their school spirit in the stands at the football game.

"I wore blue pants and a gold shirt," said Brianna Deiotte, 2007.

At halftime the convertibles came around the track, and as the homecoming candidates step out of their cars, they linked arms with their escorts and walked up the red carpet.

"I knew everyone deserved to win," said Marriah Barkley.

Finally, they announced the winner, Nicki Joslyn.

After a night of winning the game the students continued their night by going to the annual homecoming dance.

"I had so much fun dancing with my friends at the dance," said Kayte Lindsay, 2009.

The dance started at seven o'clock and ended at eleven o'clock.

"I think dances should be longer, because girls like to be fashionably late," said Alex Tabet, 2007.

With Nicki Joslyn as homecoming queen, and our football team winning the game, it looks like it was another memorable homecoming.

- students, colors, and unbeatable spirit

Winter spirit week starts with each class decorating specific halls.

"Class involvement was really great this year. Tons of kids came out and helped," said Angelina Cardona, 2007.

With many long hours spent before hand getting ready, the seniors took over and won first place.

Monday was Ice Age Day where students wore scarves, hats, gloves, and other warm winter gear.

Tuesday was Jersey Day with students representing different teams jerseys. Students packed the gym at the game against McQueen and brought in a victory.

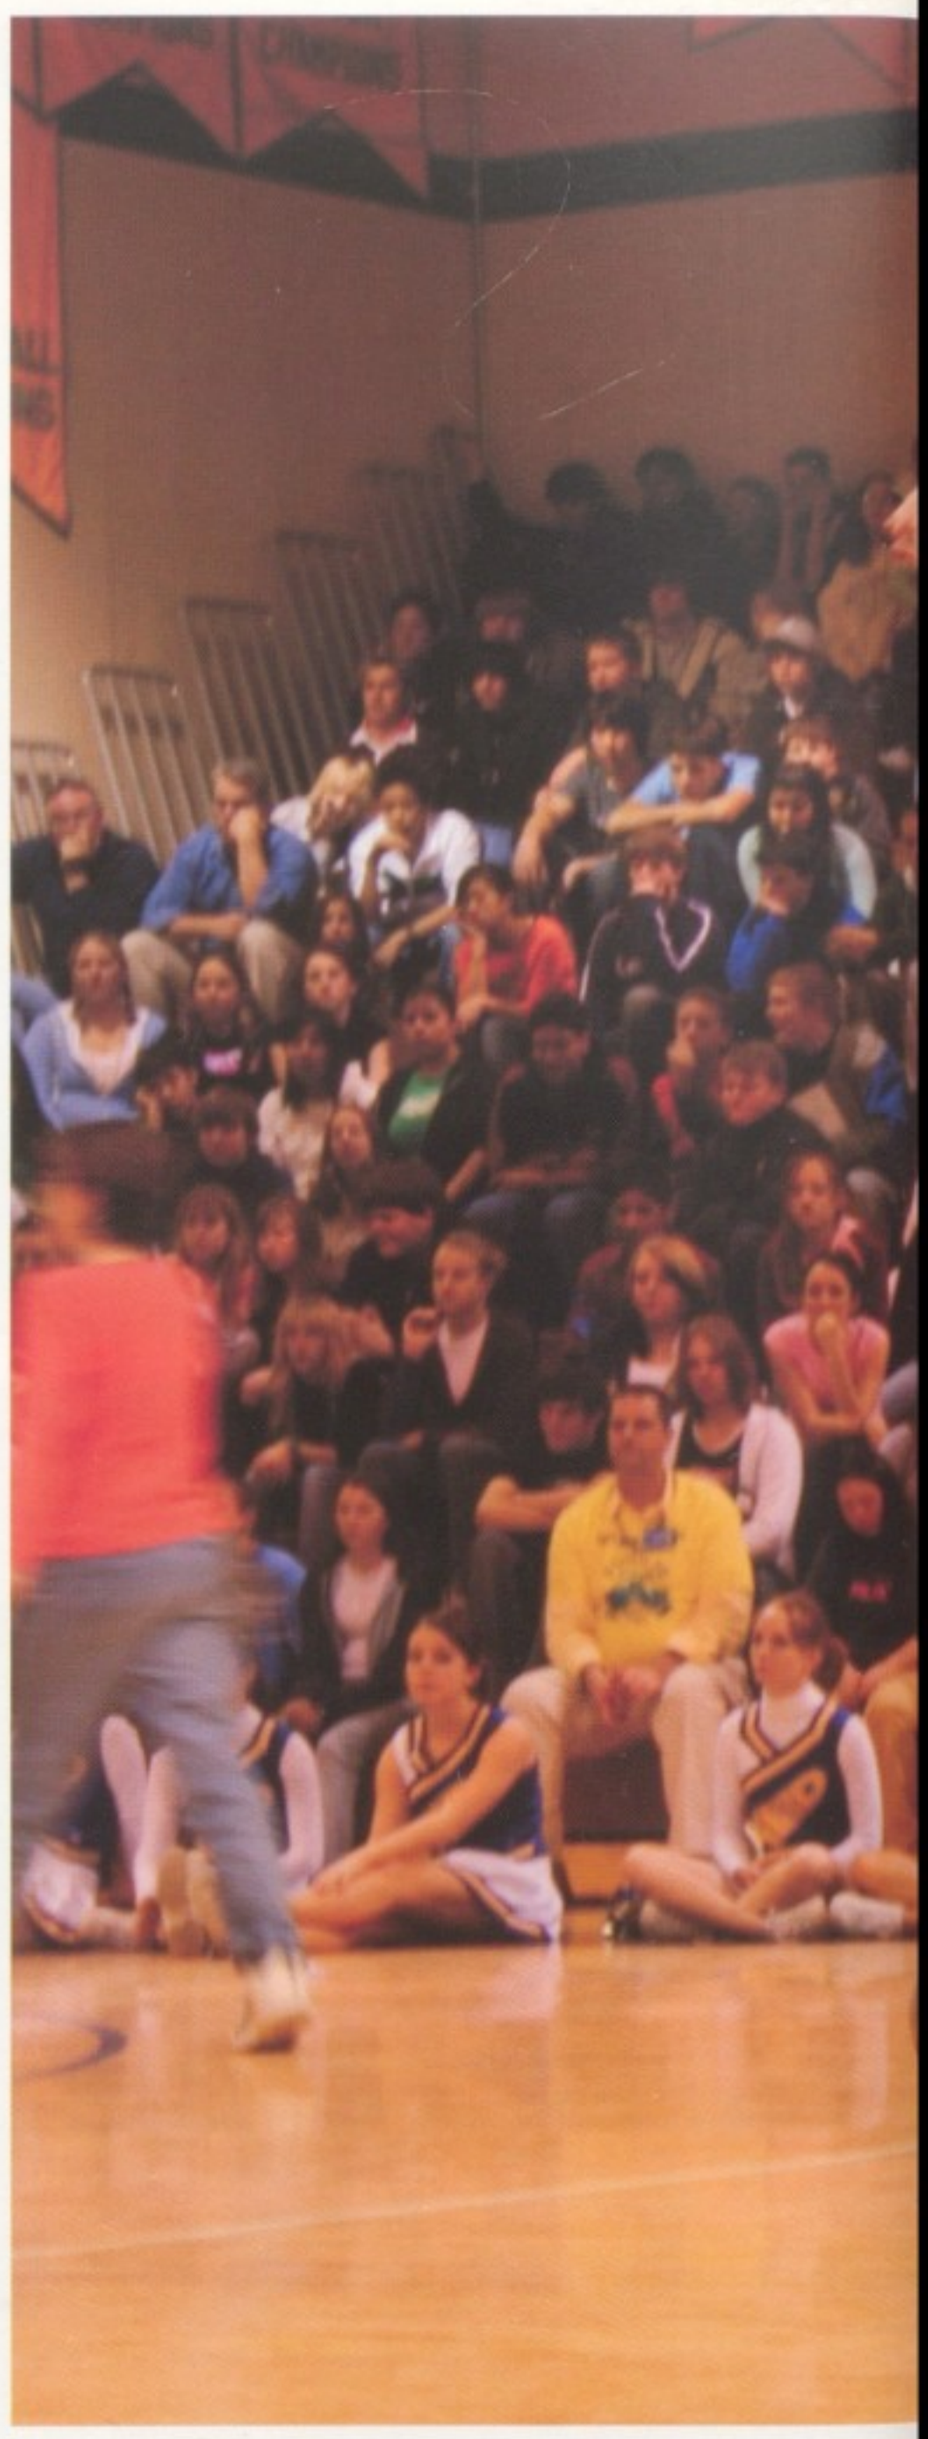
Wednesday students walked around in the hall wearing bed sheets and other cloth patterns to represent Ancient Greek Gods in Toga Day. That night students gathered in the theatre to watch the 2006 Mr. Raider.

"My favorite [event] was Mr. Raider because there were some studdly men there and they had nice moves," said Alexis Hadley, 2008.

Renaissance Thursday was class color day with Freshmen wearing yellow, Sophomores in green,Juniors representing orange, and Seniors rolling in red. The assembly was a mix of games and performances put on by the homecoming candidates.

Friday students came dressed head to toe in blue and gold getting ready for the basketball games later that night against Galena.

"Spirit week was fun,everybody got involved," said Hannah Parker, 2008.



"Ice age day was wicked cool because I got to wear my snowboarding clothes and I love wearing beenies."
-Brittany Hall, 2007.

"I loved jersey day because it was cool to see everybody supporting their favorite teams jerseys."
-Jessica Lehman, 2006.

yes, they really do come true!

Students come decked out in their blue and gold, showing off their school spirit. These students have come to celebrate this years winter homecoming. Cheering on their team through the entire game.

"Before the game my friends came over and we all got ready together. We went to the store the previous day and bought anything we could find that was blue and gold. We then went to the game and showed off our spirit," said Amy Copeland, 2008.

Traditions are made and usually kept, such as the crowning of the homecoming king and queen. The Homecoming candidates have a few hours after school to get ready for the homecoming halftime.

"Getting ready for the game was not at all as stressful as getting ready for prom. It was more exciting. At the game I sat with my friends in the stands and right before halftime I went down to the hall where all the other nominees were," said Jennifer Spencer, 2006.

Each of the homecoming candidates were announced and walked out to the center of the court. The candidates were escorted by family members and walked down a line of R.O.T.C. soldiers.

"As I walked out there I was not really thinking anything about it. When they called my name all I could think about was how beautiful Jen looked," said Brett Gard, 2006.

One thing that gives guys their chance to come out and have a little fun with their talents and craziness is Mr. Raider.

"I love to do crazy things and I wanted to act crazy for Mr. Raider," said Colton Lawson, 2007.

Each guy must perform any kind of act or performance that they think will rally up the crowd to choose them as the next Mr.Raider.

"I thought it would be a shocker and the audience would sing along with , 'Man I feel like a woman'," said Adam Allen, 2006.

Along with their performances the contestants had to make a costume or have some sort of costume to go with the skit that they were doing.

"I choose this Superman symbol shirt, because of the "S" for Strawman," said Kyle Straw, 2006.

It could be embarrassing to perform such interesting acts in front of your peers and their families.

"It was nerve wracking!" Said Chris Lash, 2006.

The experience of being involved with this event could be a great memory to the guys and students at Reed.

"It was a fantastic high school experience. I'm glad I chose to do it," said Jared Mitchell, 2007.

they're back for another performance!

The students aren't the only ones that get involved with the school. Teachers, administrators, counselors and other faculty show their school spirit in the faculty play.

"It took me about three weeks to memorize my lines," said Cindy McDaniels, staff.

The time it takes for the faculty play to go off with out a hitch can be a hard, especially for the staff members with families.

"The hardest part was the time commitment with a daughter and wife at home waiting for me," said Kris Hackbusch, staff.

The reason for the play is to help raise money for a scholarship that is given to a student.

"The best part of the play was getting to know the faculty better, and making money for our students," said Jeana Curtis, staff.

The more people that attended the play, the more money the school received.

"I'm thankful that so many came," said Terry Debarger, teacher.

Stage fright was an issue that some of the faculty went through.

"Yes! That's why you may have noticed the "menu" that was with me in any Malt Shop scenes," said Liz Knott, teacher.

The casting of the play is done for the faculty, there for there isn't much of a choice. Some feel that they were type cast, but others feel they weren't.

"I'm different from my character in that I never swapped gum with a guy before," said Jeana Curtis, staff.

- working to make a difference for kids

Trick or Treat!! Kids surround not only the streets but the halls of our school, going to several stations put on by clubs and leadership with candy and games to play. The school is decorated with different themes and the students dress up accordingly.

"We started this the year of nine eleven. A student and her family came up with the idea of this event. They donated candy and ever since then we have put this event on every year," Said Jeana Curtis, Staff.

Before safe harbor the clubs plan weeks before-hand to ensure themselves that the area given to them will have the best games, candy, and visitors. Every club hopes to be designated a spot that is easy to find and where children will be drawn to with no hesitation.

The science club members attempted to have the most 'ghoulish' booth with brains, eyeballs, and internal organs. Unfortunately, in the process of examining these body parts, hands become gooey and discolored.

Key club decided to use a more traditional game that surely entertains small children, go fish. Unfortunately, some of the children were determined to get as many 'fishies' in one turn.

This four year tradition has become a haven for parents to accompany their children where they know is a safe environment. With excitement, safe harbor has no end n the near future.

Clubs are a place where you can meet new friends with a common interest as you, and learn new things in the process as well. Some of the bigger clubs that we have are the language clubs, Japanese, Spanish, and French.

"This year we took part in Safe Harbor [october], Valentine's Day we sold our origami flowers, and in April we are going on our annual trip to San Fracisco for the SAKURA MATSURI, a weekend long festival celebrating Japanese heritage," said Kelsey Mckechnie, 2007.

Japenese Club has 40 attending members and five officers this year.

"We have our own original people of authority, including a t-shirt guy, a video game guy, and a web master," said Kelsey McKechnie, 2007.

Members spent a weekend to the massive project of creating their exhibit for Safe Harbor.

"We decided to do a set-up of scenery and characters from animated movies by a Japenese direcor named Hayou Miyazaki," said Kelsey McKechnie, 2007.

The Japenese Club does a big part in community service around the school and still have fun while doing deeds.

Giving blood is a decision that may not be taken lightly. A person can have moral reasons for donating blood or just kindness on their mind and in their heart.

"I decided to donate blood today because I've donated in the past and I think that it's just the right thing to do. It goes to helping someone out that's in need of it," said Elizabeth Gameros, 2006.

When blood is drawn it is used for many different reasons. For instance, the plasma that blood contains will go to a burn victim. Although students that donate may have fears when it comes to any aspect of giving blood, students can realize how generous giving blood is.

"This is my second time giving blood, but I was still nervous about it. To me it seems weird that people would be able to take something that you need to live with. However todays experience for me was fantastic," said Alex Rudd, 2006.

Afer each donor is released from one of the cots, donars are to stay in a designated area for at least ten minutes to make sure normal function is possible after giving a sufficient amount of blood. During this time donors are not only given a chance to recuperate but a chance to think of what good can come from the experience.

"Giving blood was really strange. I felt a little sick afterwards but also good because this could help a lot of people," said Zac Niles, 2007.

tools build creativity in classes

Students must take the four core classes usually known as History, English, Math and Science. Four years of English are required, and three years of Science, Math and History, as well as many other various credits including P.E. and Health.

Overwhelming as all these classes are, English and History just by themselves can be a handful. English and History teachers have found creative ways to make their classes more entertaining.

"The most fun thing I have done in my English class, was when we had to make puppets and present a puppet show, reenacting the Persius myth," said Andy Ochoa, 2007.

While English and History students are participating in activities in class, they also learn during these experiences.

"The most interesting thing I've learned in history, was when we were acting out a Civil War scene, and I found out that the Mississippi River helped the Union (North side) win the War over the Confederates (South side)," said Danny Lopez, 2007

Reports, papers, projects, and various assignments that are required in English and History classes, can make a students life hectic, but once all the time consuming class work is done, it leaves behind memories that will last forever.

"The most memorable part of English class, was when my English Teacher Mr. Hoadley whaled on DDR, as an aerobic exercise," said Spencer Johnson, 2007.

Students carry memories and interpret them into vital information.

"In my government class, I learned a new fact that Australia still has an anarchy," Asia Taber, 2006.

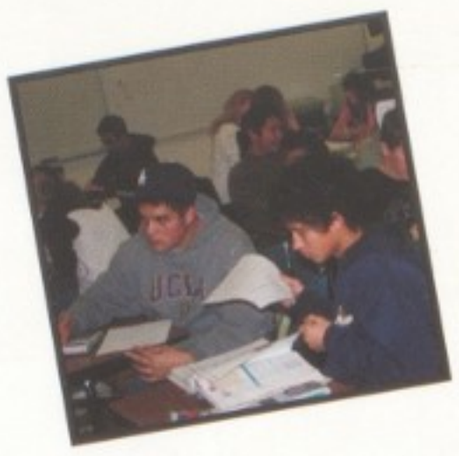
"We were reflecting a mythological story using puppets who were friends, it was lots of fun!" -Tony Torrez, 2007. (pictured with Jared Pergande, 2006)

"You have to be talented to mount on a desk, while holding onto a hairy black whig...acting in a mythological scene is not easy." - Paul Serapiglia, 2006.

"Working on labs and projects is fun because they help you prepare for test and you get to do them with friends." -Siena Cook, 2008.

"I like doing group work and lab work together with my friends." -Daniel Mendoza, 2007.

"My science class is tight because we always finish our homework in class, and Mr.. Richards is fun and exciting." -Shane Sobrio, 2007.



"I like taking notes off of the TV because it's easier than listening to the teacher lecture." -Alfredo Bernal, 2007.

"In my algebra 3-4 class I love reading the quotes on the walls because they help and inspire me." -Jamie Picollo, 2007.

"We made a rainbow prism to test the pH scale in chemistry."
-Amy Copeland, 2008.

...ExpLoRe

People usually think of science and math as "boring" classes but with self paced classes makes it more fun for students.

"I like it because its a self paced class, and it makes it easier and most fun for me to learn," said Josh Church, 2008.

Students like labs over homework to help them learn more.

"Well we are dissecting cats and cutting them open to learn their mussels and parts," said Karina Heaivilin, 2007.

Teachers also add to the fun of learning.

"Mr. Cooper lets us play chess in geometry after we're done with our homework. We also get to work in groups," said Ian Morell, 2007.

Students will actually admit that they like science.

"The most fun science class I have taken would have to be Earth science because Mr. Richards tells us all kinds of stories that are awesome and really funny! He is just a funny guy and he makes the class enjoyable," said Justin Spencer, 2007.

Students like the technical part of math and science like the numbers and problems.

"I like working with the numbers in Algebra," said Tyff Hoeft, 2008.

The teachers should be rewarded with putting up with these students that need these credits to graduate and with the difficult problems it is really hard to teach students that don't want to learn.

There are three options to choose from when signing up for a foreign language class: Spanish, French, and Japanese.

Students who take a foreign language elective understand how hard it is to learn and master a new.

It requires many hours of studying and practice to get the language down. From pronunciation to writing and learning about the culture, these classes take commitment.

"We draw a lot of pictures that go with our vocabulary words," said Kandis Love, 2008.

In general, two years of a foreign language are required for college entrance. This fact drives many students enroll in the classes.

makes its way into the classroom

"I took a foreign language because it's required for scholarships," said Jessica Cabanilla, 2008.

Taking a language class is about more that earning credit and getting into college for some students.

"I wanted to speak with other [people] in our town. It makes me feel multi-cultural. I get to hang out with all the freshman in my Spanish 1-2 class," said Mike Boreham, 2007.

Not all students take foreign languages to learn them but to understand their own language better.

"I was born in Mexico so I know Spanish, when I moved here I learned English, now I am learning French," said Kim Winckelmann, 2008.

a hand to students and teachers

Extra help is always needed whether it be helping students or helping the teacher. Choosing the teacher and which class you want to help with can be another challenge to being a peer tutor or student aide.

"Choosing Mrs. Kelly as my teacher was easy because I had her two years before and I wanted to help the students like she helped me," said Jillian Rodriguez, 2007.

Becoming a tutor you need to actually like what you are doing or it's going to be a very long and drug out year.

Heather L'Angelle, 2007 said, "The most interesting thing that I do is motivate the students to do better and to participate while having fun at the same time."

Before going into a class you have expectations of the students that you want to help and to make them feel better about themselves.

"My favorite part about helping my peers is seeing fulfillment in their faces and in their attitude when they have accomplished something," said Cassie Cortes, 2006.

To meet new people can change your way of learning things because they can help you or motivate you to do better.

"When you help your peers and teachers you are most likely going to meet new friends and meet many new people," said Michelle Pena, 2008.

CAN I GET YOUR NUMBER

RKOM is a mentor program designed for freshman to make the transition from middle school to high school a smooth one. It makes it easier for freshman to get a better understanding of what high school is about on knowledge and encouragement

"I love RKOM! I really do! It's such a great experience for freshman as well as upper class man. It gives me the opportunity to help someone in need of a little direction, or maybe just someone to talk to. It's nice to be able to escape the world of upper classmen and to just have fun," said, Alex Browne, 2007.

RKOM mentors are selected through an application process and trained over the summer for the position. Each mentor is assigned to five to seven freshman. Each mentor is required to make contact with the freshman several times a month; to check in and make sure things are going smoothly- or to direct the student to appropriate help when necessary.

"I like RKOM because my mentors help me with anything I need help with. I think that our mentors are important. They give good advice and they are really nice..... they don't treat us like little kids, we are respected as young adults, I feel RKOM is important for that reason," said Amelia Whintle, 2009.

The RKOM program is proving to be a valuable asset to incoming freshman classes.

"So far [yearbook] has been fun, stressful, very stressful, and a lot of hard work. I'm hoping to [be in this class] again next year."
-Jordan Malizia, 2008.

...stress

To a student who has endured the yearbook class, the word 'deadline' is something that you learn to fear.

"I joined yearbook because I wanted to get more involved in school and I like to take pictures. So far, I think the class is fun, but it can be stressful when you have a deadline. The people are fun to hang out with and it's a comfortable atmosphere," said Kayla Jean Madsen, 2007.

The editor's who spend endless hours in the small but cozy computer room know just how difficult it is to be a part in creating something that will always be there.

" As an editor, yearbook get's very stressful because whatever people don't get done the editor's have to spend their time on finishing. Plus we have to go through the proofs and make sure that everything is correct. Being an editor definitely is worth it in the long run because it gives me the experience of knowing everything about the class, and knowing how to make the book," said Emily Prudden, 2008.

Over the course of the year: deadlines are made, cameras are used, workday's are completed, and sighs of relief are given once the last yearbook is distributed.

"I love being able to look at everything at the end of the year and [show other people] what things I did in the book," said Kersti McAllister, 2006.

Through all of the creativity and obstacles, at the end of the year something is distributed that is made for students by students that reflects the entire student body.

- direction, inspiration & leadership

Being a leader is not always an easy task; it takes confidence, dedication, and hard work. Preparing assemblies, making posters that go up in the halls, and coming up with several fund-raisers such as the blood drive, are all part of being in the leadership class.

"I joined leadership because now I can do more got our school. I don't think leadership is hard but its challenging because we are always doing something," said Cassie Pasley, 2006.

Being in leadership comes with many responsibilities. Each student is in charge of different events.

"We have student council socials. We do activities like lip syncs and scavenger hunts. We also have to be at every event such as dances, assemblies, and all Homecoming games," said Bryanna Nichols, 2007.

Not only do the leadership students work during the year they also had summer school to attend. Waking up early everyday during their break can really show there potential to be a leader.

"During the summer we would learn about everything we would be doing over the year. Such as painting signs and other activities. We played games and really got to know one another. We also got to plan out the first assembly," said Nikki Donohoe, 2006.

These students spend a lot of time during and after school hours to stay involved and keep others students' spirits high.

creativeness through foods and crafts

Art is expressed in many ways. The students taking the Foods and Wearable Arts electives express creativity through each fashioned product.

"I like it because I get to put my own ideas and individuality in my projects," said Christina Bennett, 2008.

In foods students make dishes from various cultures and regions.

"It [foods] offered good opportunities... I learned many different styles of cooking," said Lacie Young, 2008.

Students enrolled in the Foods classes occasionally prepare meals for staff meetings and faculty luncheons.

"I like it because it's a fun way to learn how to cook," said Nicole Wogberg, 2008.

The Wearable Arts elective offers students the opportunity to create pieces of clothing and home accessories. The class covers the making of purses and pillows to stitching and embroidery.

"We've made purses, pillows, and blankets," said Ashlee Bland, 2008.

Often times, the products of this class can be found in display cases around the school.

It takes a lot of skill and practice to cut and measure the fabric and to use the sewing machine.

"It's definitely not easy the first time using a sewing machine," said Brittany Catron, 2007.

Students are learning valuable skills that can be used later in life through these classes.

The vocational arts program offers students a look into several different trades. These classes allow students to participate in hands on situations that they may not ordinarily be exposed to.

" I took metals because I would like to have a career in it when I get older," said Daniel Reid, 2006.

These classes present students with new challenges and obstacles to overcome.

"The hardest part is putting big hands in little spaces," said Mike Weiss, 2006.

In the woods class, students learn to build sheds, model houses and to put up dry wall in addition, they learn the basics of installing plumbing and electrical devices.

"My favorite part was making the drywall for a house. The hardest part was getting the instructions down," said Antonio Rosales, 2009.

The metals class involves stations where students learn about various kinds of metal working.

"Oxywelding is the hardest! Everything else is easy," said Ryan Farney, 2009.

In the auto class, Brad Hayes teaches how the engine and other parts of a vehicle work together. Students are encouraged to bring in their own cars to work with, but some dream of working on other cars.

"I would love to work on a 1941 Willy's two door coupe," said Mike Weiss, 2006.

This elective group is as diverse as the students who sign up for it.

...Artistic

- creating and expressing yourself

Art- an all encompassing term for the variety of self-expressive classes offered as elective credit. Students who choose a course in this department may use mediums such as watercolor, chalk, paint, pencil, ceramic, etc.

Reasons behind signing up for an art class vary. Some students take the class for personal reasons.

"The thing I love most about being in art is that there's no restrictions and you can make whatever you want. We are very free minded people," said Caitlyn Marshall, 2007.

Some students take the classes for the brain exercise.

"I think people should take art because you can expand your mind while you work," said Kim Jarding, 2007.

Still other students take the classes for specific projects.

"My favorite thing in art is the scratch board. I took this class because I didn't want to have a hard class every day," said Ryan Pearce, 2009.

Then there are students who enroll in the classes because that's just what you do when you're a senior.

"This is my first time taking ceramics. I took it because I saw all the other peoples' pieces and because I am a senior and everyone I know takes ceramics when they're a senior," said AJ Corbridge, 2006.

No matter what the reason for joining the program, students enjoy the opportunity to express themselves.

" I joined art because I liked drawing when I was a little kid." Matt Greenlees, 2007.

"The reason I joined art was to get better at it and learn new stuff." Scott Sullivan, 2009.

"It's my favorite class because its an easy class with good people in it." Allison Suiza, 2008.

...taking Our Town to the stage

Working hard during the school year, students put on plays that entertain the student body. Practicing lines three to five hours after school, and preparing the props, students begin getting ready for the big day.

It takes courage and dedication to be able to stand up in front of people, and act out your lines.

"The hardest line I had to memorize would be the monologue for Our Town. It definitely took a while to learn," said Juila Pratt, 2007.

Drama is a class that teaches students how to get over stage fright, and how to act. This includes changing outfits, set designs, and personalities to make the characters come alive.

"I enjoy being up on stage, its an adrenaline rush," said Caitlin Randolph, 2007.

Working those hard late nights, a few days before the opening performance, students finally get to show off all their hard work.

"I don't even get nervous, I love being on stage, it's great," said Tim Hanson, 2007.

Our Town not only came form hard work, but also dedication of perfecting the most difficult characters in the play.

" The hardest [part] was when I played Mr. Webb, the editor of the newspaper, and father of Emily [the main character]," said Adam Allen, 2006.

Learning to play an instrument and play music is not always an easy thing to accomplish. It takes hours of practice and hard work for the students in strings to produce music.

Students use class time to practice, but are also encouraged to practice at home for ninety minutes a week.

"I only practice playing for about thirty minutes a week," said Tony Aguilar, 2008.

There are many different types of instruments included in the stings family such as the violin, viola, bass, and the guitar.

"I play the viola. I have been playing it for about 3 years now and I love it," said Josh Sani, 2009.

There are three different levels of stings that students can take, beginners, intermediate, and advanced strings for those who have been playing since they were little.

Students in these classes learn several songs and continue to practice the songs throughout the year. Of course, favorite songs emerge for some students as the year progresses.

"I like to play The Odyssey because I like how it sounds," said Ryan Payne, 2009.

The students involved in strings put on several concerts a year to showcase their learned skills and talents. They also show different techniques they have learned over the course of the year while adding to their musical career.

In the end strings students have experienced memories that will last a lifetime.

All the students come together to put on a beautiful performance letting their voices be heard. Concert choir requires hard work, from working in school, to practicing after school.

Doing certain warm-ups helps the students with singing abilities, and helps them to relax for the big competition.

Choir students have the chance to get in touch with their inner self, and express themselves.

"Music is a joy of life, and if I'm up their singing then I bring joy to other people, and my teacher," said Christin Smith, 2007.

Not only does concert choir sing their own songs, but they bring back older melodies, and add a their own special touch.

"Trying to focus on my part, and to not pick up on anyone elses part can be difficult. I joined choir because I love to sing, and have been doing it for a long time," said David Martinez 2009.

Sticking together with something like this gives them a lot of pride, and responsibility.

"I like to sing, I definitely plan on singing the rest of my high school years." said Leslie Lewis 2008.

In the end the hard work and dedication pays off with marvelous performances. The experience creates long lasting memories, and friendships that will last a lifetime for all students involved.

Singing is often a manifestation of a person's creative lifestyle. Dedication, patience, and hard work are a necessity to perfecting your voice.

Students committed to singing and interested in pursuing vocal careers, may audition each year for Intemezzo or Women's Choir. Both classes are taught by John Lorentzen.

"I love to sing and I wanted to have a challenge vocally. So I tried out [for women's choir] and I made it," said Leah Schebler, 2009.

Some people look at singing as a life-style. Not only do these students sing during class, but at every moment possible.

"I love music! Music to me is like air. I wouldn't be able to live with out it," said Krystyna Hunden, 2008.

Most of the students in choir have performed outside of class.

"I performed the national anthem twice at Wooster High School, and for a memorial in November," said Melody Wilson, 2008.

The students in Women's Choir and Intemezzo are separated into four vocal sections: Alto, Soprano, Mezzo Soprano and Second Soprano. The difference between each group is slight and can change at any moment in life.

"Right now I'm an Alto, but I have never been this pitch before. I used to sing either Soprano or Mezzo Soprano. I guess my voice has deepened a bit, because it's hard for me to sing high anymore," said Michelle Nguyen, 2008.

"It involves a lot more than just banging drums, there's so much technique and musicality," said Rachel Gonzalez, 2006.

Practice makes perfect, especially to the students involved in drumline. They practice twice a week for a total of 3 hours a day, plus any at home or lunch practices.

In the beginning the sections of drumline separate to learn their different parts, but as practices progress, the group comes together as a whole to learn choreography and timing.

Competitions make up a driving force for the drumline.

"We go on four to five hour bus rides to California to compete, it's always fun...We're like a big family," said MJ Fisher, 2006.

The Naval Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps (NJROTC) offers real life experience to high school students. Lessons in this program range from strict respect for authority to intense physical training.

Students join NJROTC for many reasons.

"I joined ROTC to prepare myself for the military and to gain leadership experience," said Mike Brand, 2006.

Each student who joins NJROTC takes something different away from it.

"What ROTC means to me is discipline, respect, pride, leadership, and teamwork," said Josh Mutua, 2007.

One of the major highlights for NJROTC students is the opportunity to compete in drills meets.

NJROTC competes in three meets each year: the Titan, the Reed Invitational, and the Brigade. RHS NJROTC placed first in all three meets in 2005.

"This year we are competing in four drill meets, because we are so highly ranked in Washoe County. We were invited to the Las Vegas Area Drill Competition, where we'll get to compete against the very finest schools in the Western Region," said Adrian Arthur, 2007.

NJROTC students demonstrate all that they have learned and achieved in class several times a week when they wear their uniforms to school. The uniforms represent each student's class and rank in ROTC.

bonded through love of the game

The love for one sport has the power to bond a team together for life. Players on the varsity team have things they are going to miss, things they are going to look forward to, and friendships that will last a lifetime.

"I am going to miss the games. That's why I played football," said Calder Cohen, 2006.

The players graduating will be remembered and the junior players will be here next year to lead us to victory.

"I look forward to all of us coming back as seniors and winning state," said Tony Maldonado, 2007.

Throughout the year everyone has at least one moment worth remembering.

"My best memory [of this year] was when I got a tackle against Wooster," said Ian Morell, 2007.

Players are dedicated to the team and the sport.

"The long days during the summer, when it was really hot out, I would practice football instead of going to the lake," said Calder Cohen, 2006.

Being great and winning are not the only things the team has to worry about.

"The hardest part [of this season] was when I got hurt and I had to deal with that," said Jake Rousseau, 2006.

Overall the team came out of the season with memories of triumph and defeat. Their pride however is still as strong as ever with the accomplishment of making it to the playoffs and showing the community that they are ready to be crowned victors.

... Practice

A season worth a million words, with unbearable tackles, extreme touch downs and a winning season of five to four, these guys played with all they've got.

Most people don't kow that practices last three to four hours Monday thru Thursday with an additional two hour practice on Saturday mornings. The Saturday practices are used to review game films and footage.

"Football at Reed is a year round thing. I didn't like practicing, but it pays off on Friday nights in the game," said Jordan Rousseau, 2008.

During the season there were challenging moments for the guys including preparation for the season, dodging tackles from other teams, and long hours of conditioning.

"Practice and conditioning we're the most challenging for me," said Cody Cate, 2008.

Playing eight games the whole season, with only a few players, the team played some rough games.

"The last game against Galena was the hardest; we were so depleted by injuries and illnesses and it was frustrating losing to the team that we could of easily beat if we were at full strength," said coach John Lott.

There were also games that the players loved.

"The Spanish springs game was by far our most exciting game of the year...down to the final few minutes and the score was 53-44 or something like that," said Zack Parker, 2008.

Endurance, speed, dedication, and self-discipline, all qualities that are needed to participate in a demanding and strict game like football.

"We have to practice four days a week. Mondays and Tuesdays are...smashing and conditioning. Wednesdays and Fridays are [a little] easier," said Ben Haag.

Being in peak, physical condition isn't the only thing that is needed in this game. There are other qualities that often go disregarded and sometimes there are beliefs that are contrary to the nature of the game.

"People think that we are just a bunch of [kids] and that all we do is football. That's not true; we can do the school work as well," said Ben Haag.

With all the practices, training and studying, the team doesn't stand alone when it comes to support.

"Since we're the freshmen team, we didn't get much [support], but the people that did come were greatly appreciated," said Josh Grohoski.

With everyone behind them every step of the way, it was up to them to get the job done and win, win, win.

thoughts of encouragement in fans

Cheerleaders are at every game dedicated to putting spirit into our school's athletic victories. They show tremendous amounts of school spirit every chance they get and encourage crowds at games to cheer along with them. The energy from the crowd and the cheerleaders pushes the athletes to strive for a win.

"My favorite thing about cheer leading is making closer bonds with my teammates and cheering on our teams to victory," said Cassie Hamand, 2006.

Cheerleaders do a lot of extreme stunts that require a great deal of choreography and dedication.

"In cheer leading I can do tumbling flips, and jumps, but the hardest thing for me is trying to get my full in tumbling," said Rachael Johnson, 2007.

Varsity Cheerleaders have to remember 25 cheers and dance routines, with practice two days a week, and they must be present for every Varsity Football and Basketball game.

"The average cost for me to cheer at Reed High School is $909, because of all the demands of being a cheerleader," said Angel Burton, 2006.

Cheerleaders are completely dedicated to the school. It seems that the underlying string that ties them together is the desire to raise school spirit and athletic support.

"I became a cheerleader because I wanted to get more spirited with my school," said Brittany Matteoni, 2007.

"The games are fun and exciting because everybody is watching you," said Jennifer Mabus.

"I don't get nervous, I just get anxious and excited before big games," said, Catherine Saiz.

"It's fun cheering with all the girls because we get along really well together," said Natlie Person.

"When your out there you want to do the best you can do because your representing your school," said Meagan Eng.

The JV cheerleaders are known for their spunk, friendlyness, and determination to motivate their players. These girls give up hours of their time every week to practice and make sure they are the best squad around. With all the time they spend together friendships start developing.

"It's hard at first when you make the team and have to be friends with everybody. We now all hang out together a lot outside of school and are good friends," said Kirstie Messerli.

Most of these girls have been cheering for many years and it's a big part of their lives. Others just want to get involved with the school and show spirit.

"I've always loved cheering and I wanted to show my school spirit," said Meagan Eng.

The games can get pretty intense and exciting for not only the cheerleaders, but the crowd as well.

"It's exciting, you get an adreniline rush, and you want to motivate the crowd and the players," said Sioban Slaton.

A cheerleaders main job is to get everyone pumped up.

"It's exciting when the crowd gets into it and involved and cheers along with you," said Ashley Espin.

Not only do these girls have to posses motivation skills, but many other physical skills. Stunting, jumping, and especially tumbling take a lot of practice, and if they are not done right serious injuries can occur.

"Stunting is the toughest part, but it is still fun. I think it's tough because you have to be able to trust eachother," said Hope Townsell.

"I love getting the crowed pumped up before big games. I love seeing everyone all enthusiastic and to see that everyone is having a good time. My thing is to cheer all out or dont cheer at all." Ahleey Bushee, 2009

Getting a good reaction from the crowds makes the cheerladers feel like they are doing their job as a cheerleader.

"I love getting the croweds hyped up at the games, it's a rush but it feels good. It lets me know that I am doing my job as a cheerleader and that is the best feeling!" Jessica Smith, 2009

Cheering is a way of expressing who you are and how you feel at that exact moment. It tends to make some cheerleaders feel important and that they acually get that respect from the fans.

"I like to cheer, it expresses who I am and how I feel..... It can be a rush but hey, it's all worth it!" Lauren Young, 2009

Sometimes keeping a traditon going can be of important. "I was a cheerleader in seventh and eighth grade and it was really fun. I thought it would be fun to do it in high school just to carry on with the same traditon of being a cheerleader." Rachel Podnar, 2009

. . . Dedication

Learning to spike, dive, and pass a volleyball is only part of the task. Volleyball takes hard work and dedication. It is a team sport and it takes every player to win a game.

A big part of volleyball is knowing who is on the court and how they will react to every situation.

"My favorite part of volleyball was the team and the coach. We had so much fun with each other," said Ashley Smith, 2009.

Some of the play positions in volleyball include: setter, defensive specialist, middle blocker, libero, and outside, each player must know how to at least cover each position; unlike other sports, players in volleyball rotate through each position, and have a limited number of substitutions per game.

"I think that being a setter, is one of the hardest positions on the court. You have to learn to take a lot of criticism," said Rachael Vaughn, 2009.

The girls are encouraged to work on their skills outside of practices and games. Practices generally take place everyday after school.

"The biggest challenge about being in this sport, is mostly grades, balancing homework, sports, friends and family, it is pretty tricky," said Kandice Georgetta, 2008.

Freshmen volleyball had and exciting year filled with spikes and setups. Hours of practice and hard work were incorperated into their perfomances for games and tournaments.

"I just started playing this year and absolutly loved every minute of it. It was a really good experience," said Brittany Shaney, 2009.

Hard work does pay off, with practices everyday from 2:45 to 4:45 P.M. During the practices, the girls would work on hitting, passing, and serving drills. Of coarse one of the techniques they practiced is how to work together as a team.

"Practicing two hours a day on weekdays wasn't that bad. Sometimes it was fun and easy and other times it was a kick in the butt," said Tia Wunder, 2009.

It was an exellent first year for all of the young athletes; a year that incoorporated new skills and strategies to use on the court.

"One thing that others don't really know about volleyball is that it is harder than it looks," said Jackie Lee, 2009.

The teamwork and effort that were used in the games was evident. The vast majority of the plays in the games forced the girls to rely on the unity.

"The girls on our team all got along great. We had so much fun together! This season was a blast," said Amber Slater.

Volleyball is a very fast paced game and requires very quick reflexes. With these skills the girls managed to turn their first season of volleyball into a rewarding experience.

persevere, calculate the distance to finish

Cross country can be strenuous. It tests your mental strength and physical capability. Practices and meets present a lot of pressure.

"The adrenaline that you gain while running is great you feel the wind in your hair and you get to feel the victory and over powering trust in yourself to get to the finish line," said Adam Farnsworth, 2007.

The competition runs high, but racing past competitors is a stimulating experience.

"Getting past your competition is the best feeling; you feel like you are the best and that you can keep in front of them for that time and get to the finish line," said Katie Hertzberg, 2007.

Keeping the pace while persevering is a key element for a long distance runner to embody.

"Concentrating gets me to do the best that I can so that I can be aware of [what is] all around me and to make sure that I get to the finish line before the runners on the other teams," said Dominic Diprinzio, 2006.

Striving to be the best does not come easy. It takes time and commitment to build stamina and to finish strong in the end.

"It is really important for me to like something [running] and have fun while doing it," said Tony Torres, 2007.

In cross country it's vital to withstand negative and tired thoughts that cross through the mind as the finish line nears and fatigue sets in.

There is a long standing stereotype that says girl's can't play golf. The members of the women's golf team proved that rumor to be false.

The handful of girl's who made up the team this year had very different reasons for joining. Some played because it's family tradition.

"My parents and I would go play [golf] for fun. It got more serious [for me] in eighth grade," said Mary Sprinkel, 2007.

Others were inspired by siblings who played before them.

"I have been playing for two years. My brother got me interested in golf; he played for four years while he was at Reed," said Rachel Morris, 2007.

There were those who went out for the team just to experience something new.

"I wanted to try something new and it seemed challenging and fun," said Joelle Dalke, 2007.

Then there were the girls who were looking to the future.

"Golf to me means getting a scholarship," said Jennifer Maestas, 2008.

Regardless of their reasons for playing, one thing is certain; it's not an easy game.

"The biggest thing about golf is staying focused, keeping your head in the game and not getting distracted," said Joelle Dalke, 2007.

Although physical talent is a major part of the game, it seems that the team had a different message to share with fans.

"Its a mental game. It is hard to bounce back from a couple bad holes. It is like a train wreck and you will get a bad score if you don't focus," said Mary Sprinkel, 2007.

playing the game and setting the score

Players on the girls tennis team understand the meaning of hard work and dedication. Each team member knows that the effort put in will result in a team win or a team loss.

"It [tennis] is harder than it looks. But it's worth it, the team is great," said Katelynn Hadlock, 2007.

Like most sports, there are specific challenges associated with tennis.

"We, the girls, are really hard on ourselves. We want to have success. Tennis is all about improving your game and becoming better," said Sarah Mueller, 2009.

Although turnout may not be the same as it is for a football game, tennis fans motivated the team with positive reinforcement.

"I felt like the support was pretty good, we didn't usually have a big audience, but everyone was pretty supportive and positive," said Anna Golbov, 2008.

Hours of practice take place before each match.

"We mostly spent time working on our game, same as any sport," said Allison Reid, 2008.

While it may seem that there is little to know about tennis, the girls on the team shared otherwise.

"I think the least known fact about tennis is how challenging and tough it is. You are running across and back and forth. Tennis is also a mental part of planning where to be and where to place the ball, and that is really tough," said Keely Thoreson, 2009.

Soccer is a sport not meant for the weak. The skills you need for this intense sport are endurance, speed, mental strength and agility.

"The hardest part about soccer would probably be the fitness," said Jake Blacket, 2008.

Many of the players on this team have been playing soccer since they were kids.

"I have been playing soccer for 14 years because my mom thought I was to small to play football, and ever since then I have had a love for the sport," said Chris Scanlan, 2006.

The team went through several trials early in the season; spirits weren't high after the team lost their head coach mid-season.

"The hardest thing about the season was... our coaches, because we lost our first coach in the middle of the season and we had to worry about finding a new coach," said Andrew Playton, 2006.

Even though there were bumps in the road, the boys left with memories they will cherish for the rest of their lives.

"My best memory was definitely the homecoming game against McQueen," said Jimmy Reed, 2006.

Soccer isn't just a sport to play, it has a special meaning to the boys who played.

Soccer requires determination, communication, team effort and hard work. Winning games, drives soccer players to thrive for excellence each time a game is played.

"I love the drive of the sport. Yes sometimes it can be a bit of a challenge but I love a challenge when it comes my way," said Ryan Nelson, 2009.

It is a very challenging sport, that tests mental strength and physical capability.

People are led to the play soccer for many different directions and in a variety of ways. No matter what brings a player to the field, love of the game is what keeps players involved.

"I am on the soccer team because I played football last year and I wanted to try something new this year," said Author Harding, 2008.

The least known fact about this sport is that it is played through out the whole world it just a little less popular than other sports. The team put a lot of work into practices.

"The hardest part about soccer was mostly the practices. Everyday after school, we had to run the mountain to seven eleven, to the montains, and the back to Reed. Then we played a couple scrimages. I was pretty tired after practice," said Timothy Heron, 2009.

Soccer is a very intense sport that takes endurance and passion for the game. However, when the work is completed as a team the outcome usually leads to a victory.

of a team shines on the field

Varsity soccer can be challenging, tough, and pain enduring hardwork. Before heading out for a game the girls have to go through days, and even weeks of difficult conditiong. With drills like: doggies, UCLA'S, lots of running, and dribbling the ball, soccer got hard for alot of girls.

"Try-outs and doing your job on the soccer field were the hardest parts of this sport because you have to go all out to prove to your coaches you're worthy," said Kayla Madsen, 2007.

Along with conditioning the girls had a lot of practice to do before the games. Eating healthy, staying in shape, and running miles on their own time are just some of the ways that help the girls get ready for the games.

"The practices were always intense and challenging, which is a huge part of why we are so succsessful." said Tarah Bowser, 2006.

The support of the soccer team from students is great. With the support of the fans it makes the games go much easier for the girls. The girls get pumped up when more fans are cheering in the stands.

"I love when our fans come to watch. We really appreciate that." said Mary-Alice Palmer, 2007.

To be a great soccer team, you need team unity. It takes a lot of time, effort, and perserveirance. The team rely on easchothers support and encouragement.

give up on your dreams

Soccer is an intense sport. It takes a lot of heart, skill, and dedication. Being mentally and physically strong, and not let anything get in the way will help you succeed in this sport. Not only do the girls have what it takes, they work themselves during the games. They practiced every week with only one day a of rest to spare.

The JV Girls Soccer Team commit almost all their time to playing this sport. When it comes time for their practice, they do warm ups, some conditioning, and then go into drills.

This sport is very important to a lot of these girls. "Soccer is a part of my life. I have been playing ever since I was able to, and I plan on continuing to play for as long as I can. It's weird, once you start ... and gain a love for the game, nothing can stop you or get in your way," said Krista Reigle, 2007.

The girls don't just play against an opponent but play to fight against the idea of losing. The girls had lots of support from our school during the soccer season. Most of the girls had the same opinion about how well the team functioned.

"I liked that JV and Varsity were like one team. There was no discrimination." said Mary Serrano, 2008.

The soccer season was a great success and the team enjoyed every minute of it.

Spinning, twirling, and pumping the crowd up are just a few of the tasks the Dance and Flag team perform during football season. The teams practice between six and seven hours a week.

"We stretch and then go through all of our routines and perfect them," said Deena Gore, 2008.

The Dance and Flag teams have created unbelievable bonds with one another. This makes the teams more fun to be a part of.

"My best friend is on the team and all together we are all good friends," said Erika Gutierrez, 2008.

Not only do the girls have practice and games together, but they have many competitions that they participate in. In fact they have about eight competitions throughout the year.

"The competitions are really nerve racking and intense, but when we get out there I calm down and it is a lot of fun," said Nicole Spalka, 2007.

From being in front of peers to being in front of judges can be tough on the girls. Most of the members of Flag Team are also participate on the Dance Team.

"It is a lot of pressure and you don't want to mess up because your whole school is watching you," said Michelle Sanchez, 2008.

The girls who make up both teams learn dances and routines that go along with the songs the band plays, they perform these routines at home football games.

a huge load for the players.

"We practice 3 hours everday during the season along with personal practice in the off season. Practice consists of grueling drills where sweat, tears, and blood are common place," said Brad Peterson, 2006.

Even though this all seems like a lot, the boys have a great time doing it.

"[my favorite part of the season is] being at the games with the student body and my friends watching and cheering for me," said Bryce Elwood, 2007.

The reasons that the players go out for the team differ in some small aspects of the team.

"I went out because I like basketball, and I wanted to be on Varsity," said Travis Peterson, 2008.

All of these guys love the team and stive to performe at their best.

The boys of the JV basketball team kept themselves committed and dedicated to play in the games and make this season a good one.

"It went pretty good, I thought we did well," said Kyle Leigh, 2008.

With two hours of line drills, UCLA's, up-downs and, a lot of running, the boys strive to claim another victory for Reed.

"The best thing about practices is getting better and learning to play at the pace of the game," said Dohn Matteoni, 2008.

Getting into the spirit of the games can be nerve wreaking and exhilarating for the team.

"I feel pumped up and I can't wait to shoot the ball and swat down the opposing big men," Zachary Wood, 2008.

Not all teams are easy to play against, with 12 games in the season the team has their ups and downs with opponents.

"The hardest teams to play against were Hug and Reno," said Luke Tonta, 2008.

With practices and games, the team became close to each other and shared team qualities, they also got to know each other well.

"The team was great, we were like a family," said Trever Harding, 2007.

For the team this has been a rough season, but with the help of the coaches the team made it through.

"The coaches do a great job. They put a lot of time, heart, and soul into this program. For that I am thankful," said Andrew Ardans, 2007.

The players all have reasons for trying out.

"I started playing basketball because it keeps my grades up and I love the game," said Lennox Pierce, 2009.

One of the fiun parts of playing are the games against the other High Schools.

"The two hardest teams were Hug and McQueen because we played them in overtime. We lost to Hug and beat McQueen," said Austin Moore, 2009.

A normal practice day involves a lot of time and hard work.

"We warm up by doing various running drills. Then we run plays and scrimmage and coach stops us and gives us talks on how to do better," said Timothy Wacker, 2009.

Basketball, has challenges similar to those of other sports. "The biggest challenge of basketball, for me, is working as a team," said Cody Whitworth, 2009.

In preporation for the games the team participates in many strenuous activities.

"We warm up by doing layups, then we stretch and shoot around. Finally Joey or Ozzy pumps up the team in the middle of the court," said Zachary Comphel, 2009.

The team is close and also very unique. " We played as a team and when we're down we keep our composure," Roman Kea, 2009.

The girls Varsity basketball team requires hard work, team effort and practice. Basketball is considered more than just a game, it means being sucessful at the sport and proving a point.

"Wanting to succeed in basketball later on in life makes it important and proving to all those people that think I won't make it," said Alicia Goss, 2006.

Different people have inspired or encouraged team members to play.

"My best friend Leonze, who passed away when I was thirteen, inspired me to play ball. Maria Moore also encourages me to play because she is a really good ball player, who makes me want to play more and more each day," said Felicia Brooks, 2006.

Some girls see a future in this sport, and plan on playing at the college level or maybe taking it one step further.

"I would like to carry it on to college and the W.N.B.A if I can because I have a lot of fun playing this game," said Erika McKenzie, 2009.

Losing can be everything for the girls, but it can only make them stonger as a team.

"Losing! Everybody has to lose sometimes, even though it is frustrating and hard," said Mary Sprinkel, 2007.

Through all of the hard times and good ones, the girls have come out stronger in the end.

"Don't give up... if your so far down that you can't possibly go down any farther then there is no place to go but up," said MaryAlice Palmer, 2007.

These girls obviously don't have the word quit in their vocabulary. As they never give up and are always working 110% at everything they do. From games to practices the coaches and players are always working hard.

"We do long lay ups, U.C.L.A.'s, and free throw shots. They help with getting us more in shape and more accurate on our shots," said Kellie Dunn, 2008.

The team has a lot to look forward to as they have, tough games and big rivals to deal with.

"Our biggest rival is McQueen because they always come out the hardest, and it's a fight between who wants it more," said Paula Bolan, 2008.

Basketball is a big part of these girls lives. They have to balance school so that academically they can play.

"Balancing all my classes and putting time into basketball was the biggest challenge I had to overcome," said Bo Chan, 2008

These girls are influenced by many people, like coaches, family, friends, and professional athletes.

"My coaches have definitely been a great role model for me. They've given me inspirational words that have gotten me through some tough times," said Stephanie Kao, 2008.

...Success

Basketball is not only a game it's a way to make friendships and meet new people.

"I love all of my teammates, I enjoyed playing with all of them!" said Karina Precicedo.

To these girls this sport is not all about winning.

"It wasn't a very good record, but I enjoyed the whole experience all the way," said Alejandra Hernandez.

Most of the players have a reason for being involved in this game.

"I started out in basketball in the seventh grade and loved it. So now I play basketball whenever there's a chance," said Grace Lee.

Practice is also intense for the players. There are many different drills and exercises that prepare the team for games to come.

"Practices are fun, but also kind of hard. They're full of running, drills, and going over our plays for the games," said Ashley Smith.

Some players have certain things they like to do to prepare themselves for the game. Whether it be stretching, exercising, or mental preparation.

"Before each game, to prepare for what's to come, I pray for my team," said Taylor Carter.

is a key factor on the road to victory.

Most of the girls met new friends, and had a great time doing it. Not all the girls were very satisfied with their record, but they had a fun season developing new friendships, and learning more about the game they love.

For some of the ski team, they have been at this for a long time.

"I've been a skier since I was seven and I love it. I always wanted to try something new and I had never done this type of thing before," said Heather Combs, 2008.

The members of the ski team work very hard to prepare for their upcoming meets.

"We do dryland, which is running, riding bikes, lifting weights, and being competitive about it." said Christopher Haun, 2008.

Ski team is not only hard work but fun for the team-mates too. Practices can be brutal, but with the help and support of the team, the members find it a lot easier to make it through the meets.

"The ski team is fun for me because I get to make friends with the kids from other schools," said Miranda Gledhill, 2006.

Having to balance time to ski, do homework, and hang out with friends and family can be a challange for the ski team members.

"The hardest thing about ski team is having to make up all the home-work I miss," said Erica Rudd, 2008.

Every member has their own reason for joing the ski team.

Golf is a sport that takes major mental concentration, control, and skill. Overcoming these challenges can improve a golfer's game.

"The biggest challenge for me was my attitude, because I have a bad temper and by overcoming that it has made me a better golfer," said Justin Kunert, 2007.

To become succesful during competitions in golf, prior experience is essential.

"I started playing golf because of my good buddy Josh Burkhardt, but I've only been playing seriously for about a year," said Kyle Adams, 2007.

The players of the boys golf team spend hours on the driving range trying to perfect their swing and technique.

"Usually, for practice, we warm up for thirty minutes and then go and play nine holes, but if the team isn't doing well, we'll work on fundamentals for two hours, and trust me [doing fundamentals] is no fun," said Brett Gard, 2006.

Golf is a semi-independent sport. In that aspect each golfer has their own rival during a competition.

"My biggest rival is myself, because I really need to push harder to get better as a golfer," said Conor Webber, 2007.

From the outside, swimming may look like an easy sport. Swimmers tell a different story.

"I love the water. I also like the challenge of a year round sport. Swimming is more of an individual sport, I like that," said Kayla Pierson, 2006

It's not just the effort but, its the determination that will help get the time needed to win. "I am not very fast, I do swimming because it's fun. My fastest time was thirty seconds in the fifty free. I enjoy free style because I feel like I am gliding through the water," said Sarah Petrie, 2007.

Inspiration holds an important place in this sport and motivation goes along way.

"Arlene Touch inspires me to swim, because she is ALWAYS there and keeps me motivated," said, Katherine Ting, 2007

The swim team holds strong values such as winning as a team and working hard with others to win.

"Being on the team means working hard as a team with others. It means a lot to be on a team where everyone cares and the support is always there no matter who you are," said Kelli Baldwin, 2006

Being on a team can also mean working to the best of your ability, and striving to make a win for your team.

"I love being on a team and working together, giving it 110 percent all the time. No matter what we will always stick together," saidAruth Harding, 2009.

An average ball, a piece of wood, four plates, and an open field is the essence of the game of baseball.

"Baseball is one of the most competitive sports I have ever played." said Michael Thompson, 2006.

Baseball for the Varsity players has been part of their lives for years. It takes more than just talent. It takes hard work, experience, practice, mental focus and heart to make it far in this sport.

"I pitch and play firstbase, I have been playing for about fourteen years." said Chris Garcia, 2006.

The path to becoming a great player is not always easy. There can be injuries and defeats, but those obstacles will make you a stronger player.

"Last year I tore my maniscus. I had to have surgery on one of my knees. Coming back from that injury has really taken alot out of me." said Jonathan Edmonds, 2006.

Influence can come from anyone such as parents, siblings, or professional athletes.

"I look up to David Eckstein because he was told that he wouldn't make it, and he proved everyone wrong. He is still playing pro-ball." said Mitchell Moen, 2006.

It is always good to have someone to look up to and help push you to be a better player.

"Just knowing that there could be a player out there working harder than you makes you push yourself to the limit." said Kyle Hamilton, 2006.

. . . SoLiTary

achievment equals team success

Players would agree that the best way to start off the season is with a victory.

"The most exciting way to start off a season is with a win because it gets you excited for the rest of the season," said Aaron Taylor, 2008.

Players on the team are expected to have previous experience and knowledge of how to play baseball.

"When I was five years old I swung a bat for the first time and from then on out it's been all baseball," said John Archuleta, 2008.

Baseball takes a lot of hard work and practice to reach perfection.

"During practices we start out with stretches, warm-ups, we go for a jog, then inside and outside drills, and then batting practice," said Taylor Valentine, 2009.

After all the training and practice, the desire to win lies solely on the players shoulders. They must feel confident in themselves, their teammates, and their coaches guidance. The anxiety can become hard to overcome with the need to stay focused and aware at all times.

"The hardest part of baseball to me is the mental aspect of a game. Baseball is more mental than any other sport," said Adam Moore, 2008.

Players have their own individual ways of getting pumped up for a game.

"To get prepared for a game I drink a Mountain Dew Amp and try to relax until warm-ups," said Kyle Wood, 2008.

. . . Tradition

that keeps on going and going.

There's nothing soft about it. Softball is a sport that involves many risks.

"I broke my leg sliding into home and I had to learn to walk again," said pitcher Chelsea Cohen, 2009.

Throughout the many challenges players come across it doesn't set them back from accomplishing their goals.

"My goal for this season is to put a banner up on the wall, and to have a lot of fun with my teammates," said third baseman Erica McKenzie, 2009.

Pre-game rituals have been a tradition on the varsity softball team for years.

"The team sits down on the bench and the seniors stand outside the dugout and everyone does a thing we call Bula where we pray to the 'Greek Gods' for a good game," said catcher Breanna Tavener, 2006.

The girls hope that these rituals and the talent that each and every player brings to the field will help them succeed during the season and make it to zone and possibly state.

With all the pressure the team is facing this season the players all have different ways of dealing with their pre-game nerves.

"I have learned to turn nerves into excitement so you're ready to play!" said left fielder Rachel Morris, 2007.

With many different rivals the team has made over the years, they all agreed on their biggest rival.

"Spanish Springs is our biggest rival because they are purple and good," said second baseman Alison Berry, 2008.

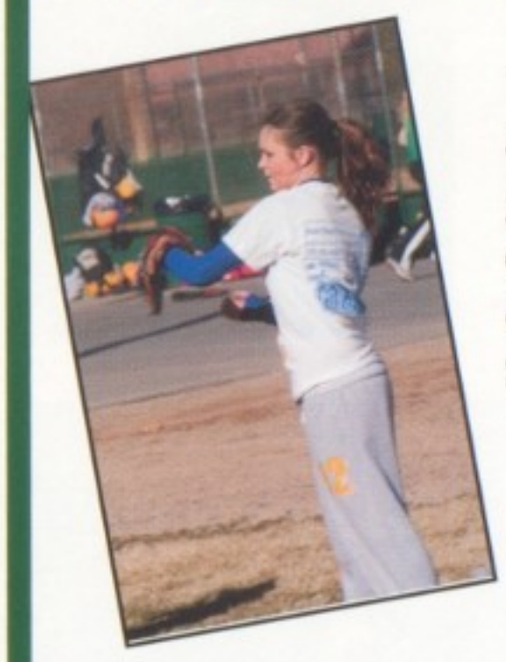
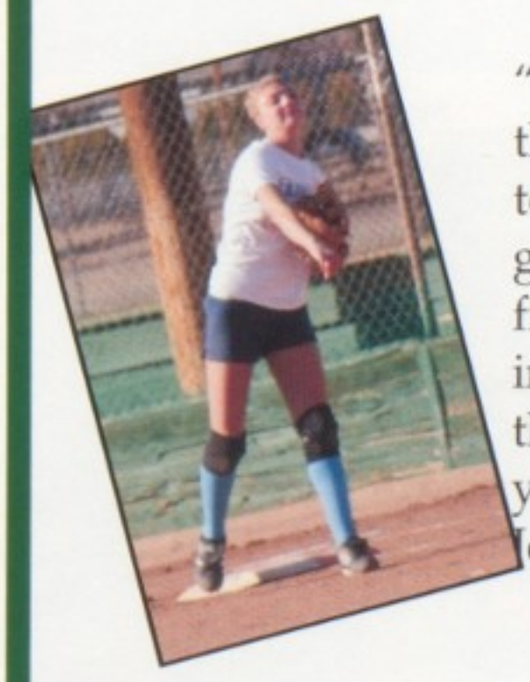
Overcome challenges



"The mental aspect of the game is the hardest thing to overcome." -Darcy Stockwell, 2007.

"The biggest challenge has been to realize that there are a lot of good girls and you need to work harder to become better." -Kelsey Hawley, 2006.



"The hardest thing is being able to know what's going on in the field, and knowing where to go if the ball comes to you." -Rochelle Jepsen, 2006.

"The hardest thing about softball is staying up when we are loosing or trying to keep other players up when they are down." -Breanna Tavener, 2006.

• Bethany Kell & Kayla Marlen

"My dad [is my role model] because he is very encouraging and he is always there for me," said Alli Souza, 2008.

"My role model would have to be Randy Johnson," said Elizabeth Holt, 2008.

"My role models are my family and my cousin Matt," said Tess Oliphant, 2009.

"My family encourages me to play and my role model is Darcy Stockwell," said Marie Terry, 2008.

"I really look up to my parents. They have supported me in this sport for ten years," said Breeanna Lisull-Johnson, 2009.

"I've watched my dad play slowpitch when I was little, ever since then I've wanted to play."
-Stephany Centeno, 2008.

...PiTcH your way to a Raider victory.

Praticing is all a part of trying to become the best at what you do. Practice makes perfect, some say. These girls come out and condition for two hours a day to get better at the positions they play.

"We work on defense drills like pick off plays, outfield pop flies, bunt situations, and anything else that will help in games. We also work on offense, just regular hitting drills off the tee or just hitting off a live pitcher," said Rebecca Brundage, 2009.

Making goals, working hard and challenging yourself to be better at what you do helps you achieve your dreams.

"My biggest challenge has been to progress to the next level and turn up the volume on my level of play," said Breeanna Lisull-Johnson, 2009.

To perfect every aspect of a players skill takes dedication, confidence, and support from the other members of the team.

"Having self confidence, in my opinion is the key to becoming a better all around player. You have to keep yourself, along with other teammates, in high spirits. I was inspired to play softball by my sister and my family since we all love softball," said Jessica Cabanilla, 2008.

Before a game anxiety and pressure can run high.

"Before a game I basically talk to my grandpa, who has passed. So, I guess I could say I pray," said Taylor Carter, 2009.

...LiMiTS

are meant to be pushed

Track isn't just about running. It's about the feeling that certain individuals get when stepping onto the field.

"The feeling I get when I'm on the track is pure excitement. My heart starts to beat faster, and I just get really excited. All I want is to win," Brandon Cotter, 2007.

Preparing for a season can be hard and time consuming for many. A lot of athletes spend extra hours outside of school building up their strengths and weaknesses.

"I prepare myself for track season by consistently working hard to build a strong body, and not worrying about anyone else," Steven Dente, 2008.

Stretching is an essential component in warming up before a meet. Pulling muscles and injuring yourself isn't a risk anyone would want to take.

"I stretch really long and hard to warm up for a meet," Adam Farnsworth, 2007.

Being an active member and participant of the track team may be a first time. However, for some intrigued students joining the track team can be routine after past enrollments.

"I've been doing track since middle school. I do the high jump because it's fun and I don't have to run," said Roman Kea, 2009.

Track may be a way to get rid of credits but to many it is something they love.

"I joined because I love and want to run. It's what I do in the off season," said Mitchell Grohoski, 2008.

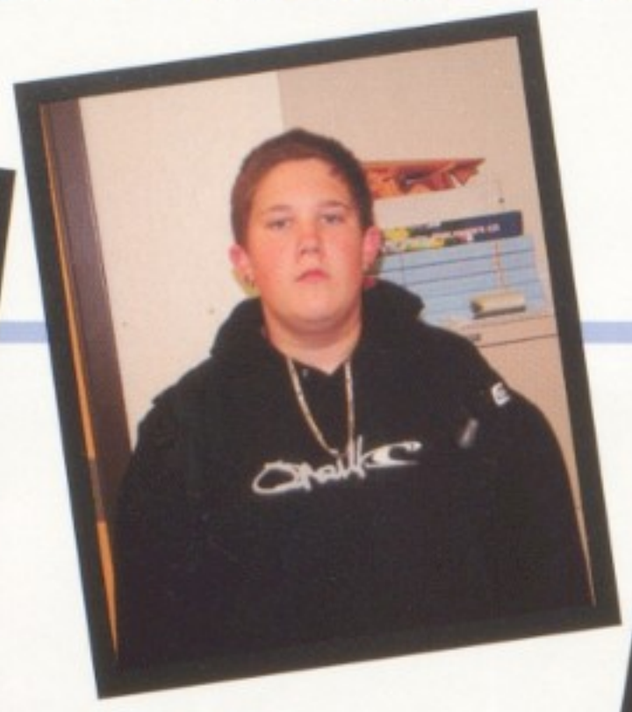
Tuck & Tumble

"I have been a gymnast since I was three years old. My mom was a gymnast in high school and I started because of it. I'm a level 9-10. When you're a level four, you get to start competing and level 10 is the highest you can go. I've been at flips gymnastics since I was five years old. My favorite equipment to use is the balance beam. I like it because I always seem to compete on it well and it's adventurous. Also, because it's fun to do tricks on. I want to stay in gymnastics to get a college scholarship, but I don't want to try for the Olympics. I would have to start training now. Being in gymnastics makes me more dedicated to get my school work done and to get straight A's. Other than gymnastics, I would like to be in student council."

ViolaTioN: DrEss Code

Mikayla Reed

"It's cool but I don't like it because you can't wear what you want to wear. They don't really enforce it though."



Chris Maytum

"I really don't care about it. The dress code doesn't really affect me."

Bianca Gamez

"I feel that they shouldn't be so strict. Our clothing represents who we are."

Tatiana Montabello

"[My dress at school and outside of school is} not much different but somethimes I show a little bit of my stomach [outside of school]."

"I love being sophomore class president. I ran because I didn't want someone to win because of popularity. Also, because I could help the class show more of its creativity and individuality. I plan to run again next year and then for student body."

Morgan DeGroff
"I ran [for Sophomore class Vice-President] because I'm an over achiever and I have a lot of school spirit. I'm definitely going to run again."

Serena Lee
"I ran [for Sophomore class Secretary] because it looks good on your college application. Also, because I can spend more time with my friends and can help the school. I do plan on running again next year."

Catherine Van
"I ran [for Sophomore class Treasurer] because this is the ultimate way to get involved with the class and school. It's a lot of fun and I'm loving it. I am going to run next year."

"I've been a gymnast for 10 year's now. I was on the national gymnasts team but I fell off the bar's and injured my back. I've had 4 injuries: my back, a broken shin, a broken ankle, and a broken foot. I like the floor the best because you can't really hurt yourself on it. I'm a level 10 which is the highest level. I only plan on staying in gymnastics until I can get a college scholarship."

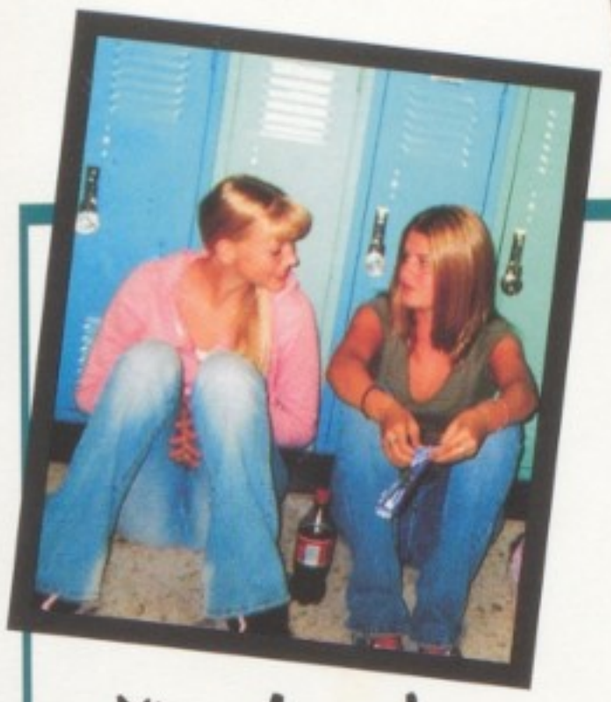
Schedule Me!



Kiera Anspah

"I like the new schedule and I think that it's easier than last year's. It only took me the first week of school to get used to it."

Marissa Tsugawa

"This year's schedule is more hectic, but seems kind of the same. It took me about the first week of school to get used to it."

Hannah Parker

View From Above

Josh Mutua started flying planes in the 6th grade. He has been interested in flying planes since he was 4 years old. Flying planes is something that Josh has loved to do and wants to make his future career. The classes he is taking have taught him what it is like to be in the military and have helped him become a better leader. "I have been able to fly military aircraft, military helicopters, and civilian aircraft. I will [have] my student pilot license in December!"
Although Josh was born in the United States, but his parents are from Kenya. "I am able to speak Kambe and Swahili. Musyoki is my Kenya name."

Do you Dress by the Code?

"I feel the dress code is better than last years, because now you don't get suspended for breaking it."
-Marisa Peri

"I feel that the dress code is too extreme for high school."
-Amber Valerio

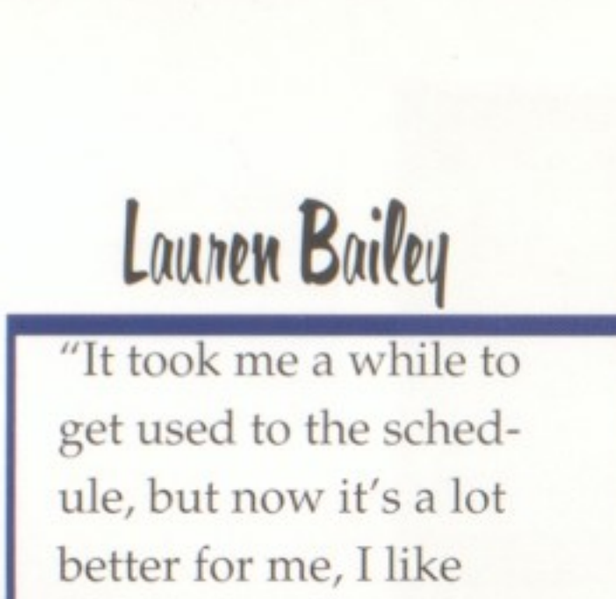
"I think we should be able to wear what we want within reason. I think that hats should be OK, we shouldn't be judged on our shoelaces they are just shoes."
-Ashley Borja

"The dress code is reasonable with some things but also it is a little bit much, like not being able to wear hats in the hallways."
-Krista Barlow

Winds of Change

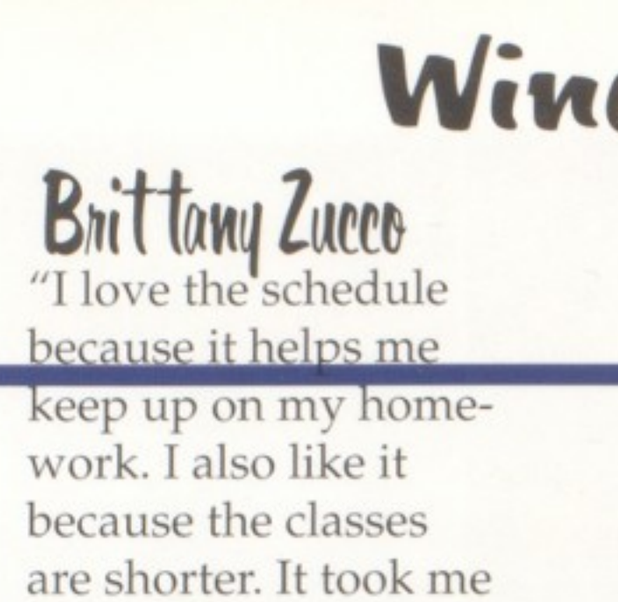
Lauren Bailey

"It took me a while to get used to the schedule, but now it's a lot better for me, I like it!"



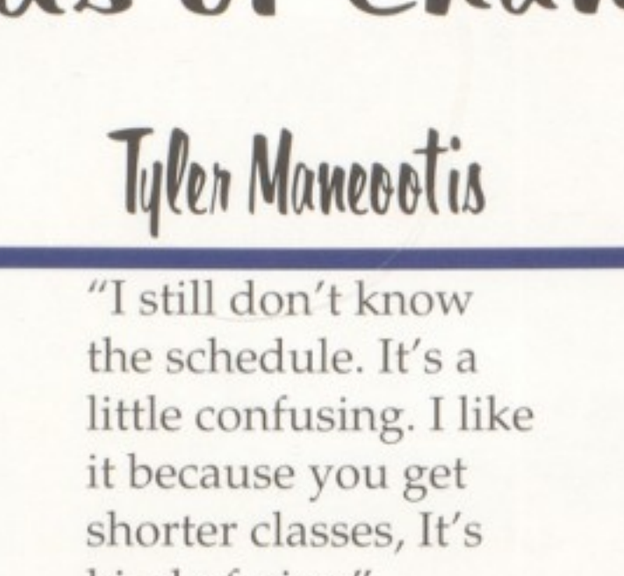
Brittany Zucco

"I love the schedule because it helps me keep up on my homework. I also like it because the classes are shorter. It took me about 3 days to figure it out."



Tyler Maneotis

"I still don't know the schedule. It's a little confusing. I like it because you get shorter classes, It's kind of nice."



Colby Fountain

"I like the new schedule this year, because the classes are a lot shorter and the day goes by faster."

Hannah Redman

Hannah Redman started gymnastics when she was six years old. " I only got to be in it because my sister was a gymnast and when I was younger I had to do everything my sister did. It's been my life ever since." Hannah has been a gymnast for eleven years now. "My goal is to get a full-ride scholarship and to hopefully be on one of the top teams." Hannah works out five days a week for four and a half hours."

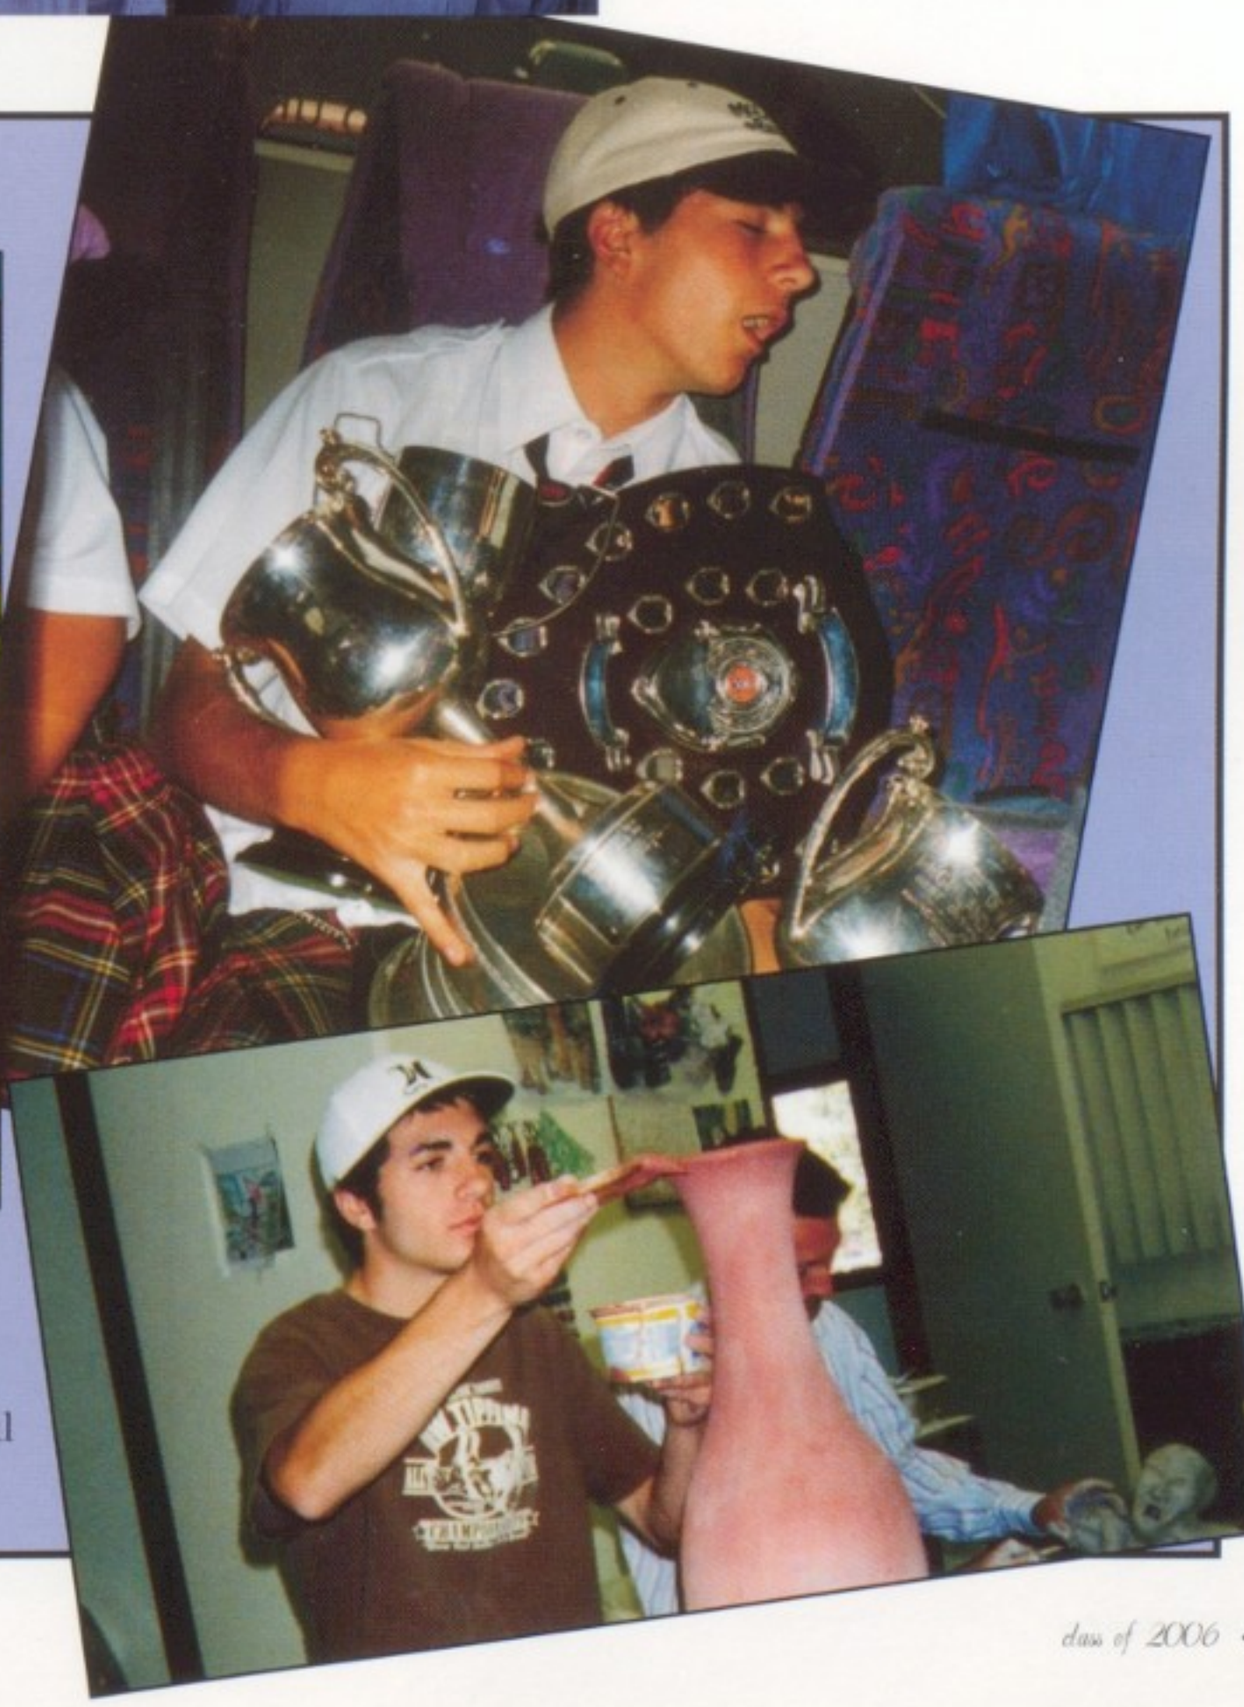
One of a kind



"In 2003 my band and I won the world championships for bagpipes. They have taken me to Scotland, Canada, and Ireland. One day I hope to be a solo bagpipe champion. I've been playing since I was nine years old. It takes about a year to learn but a life time to master. I also hope to be a successful potter. From Down Under!

"I am from Roma which is in north-eastern Australia. I came here in January of "05" and will leave January of "06". I was really excited to be apart of the American traditions. I was surprised to see how big the schools were. My last school was all girls and had 500 people altogether. I really like the food here. I have never had Mexican food before I came to the U.S. I also never had Reeses, Tootsie Rolls, Root Beer, nor Ranch Dressing. I love Ranch I am having it sent home to me. I have never celebrated Halloween or Thanksgiving this will be my first. The kids here are the same as in Australia. They both like to party and just have fun which they both do well! The fashion is basically the same just different brands and stores. My favorite store here is Abercrombie and Wet Seal. I really like American bands and movies, we get them like two months late at home. I am going to miss the people here and the culture. I am going to miss Reed High School, thank you so much for having me. "

Diplomas . . .

Your first word was "no" and your first sentence was "me do it mommy". I should have known that you would go to be the independent, self assured young woman you have become. You are so amazing; you are the best sister, daughter and friend we could have ever hoped for. I am very, very, very proud of you. I love you with all my heart.
-Mom

Megan Weinhold

Michelle Yee

Michelle, congratulations! First day of kindergarten you were so shy and quiet. We are so proud of you joining various clubs and later becoming Lt. Governor of Key Club and overcoming your shyness. You're an achiever and will accomplish many great things in life. You are a inspiration to everyone you meet.

Love always,
Mom, Dad, and Jenelle

Since the day you were born you have brought light into my life. You are a fine example for your brother as well as other people you come in contact with. You have made me proud to be your father. For me everyday is Fathers Day with you.
Love you infinity... Plus one.
-Dad

Look back and be proud of what you accomplished. Look forward to what you could be. And as you take the next step, be confident in yourself, as we are in you. Remember what's important can't be seen with your eyes, but only felt with your heart.
As you continue your journey in life, You will always be our little girl. Kasey, we love you more than you could ever know.
Mom & Dad

Morgan Yocom

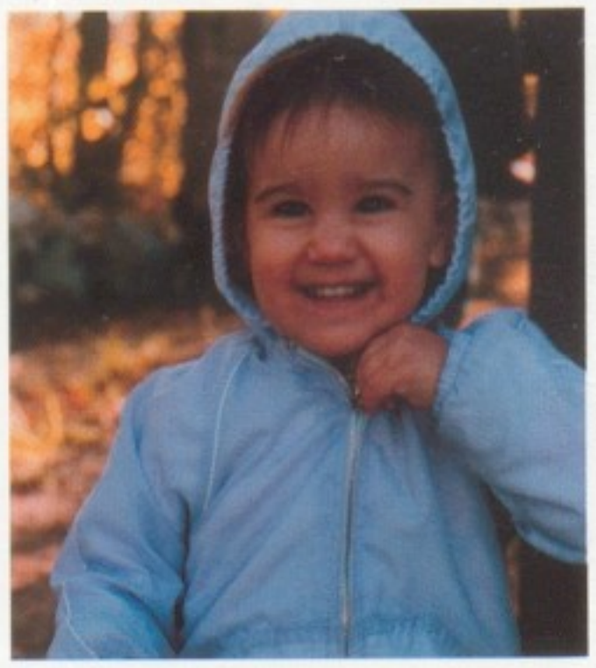
Morgan,
Always remember that if you believe in yourself all of your hopes and dreams will come true! We are very proud of you and we love you with all of our hearts.

Dad, Mom, and Casey

Kasey Pomerleau

You're the best little sister anyone could ever want.
You make me laugh and smile when I'm sad, And at other times, You make me mad. I love you so much, Half- Pint!

Forever with love
Lil Sis



Jerad Pergande

Jerad, from a tiny tot to an aspiring athlete. May your dreams come true.

Love you.

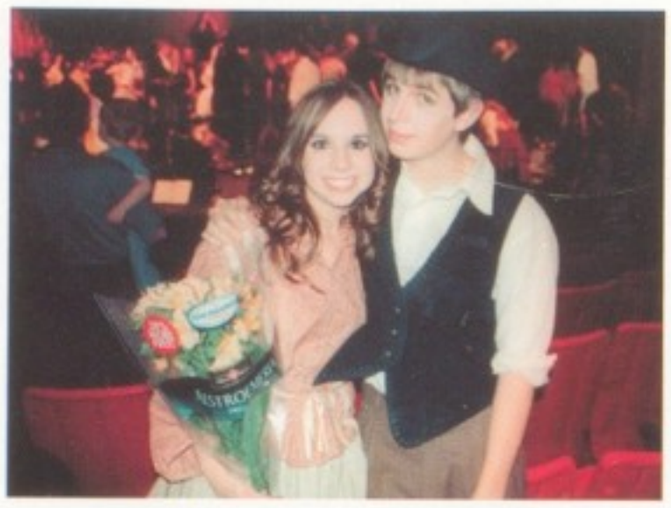
Nikki Podnar

How can I begin to tell you how proud we are of you. In my eyes, from the day you were born, you have been as big and bright as a star. You have been blessed with an abundance of love and beauty. You are so talented, creative and intelligent. The laughter and happiness you bring to your family is infinite. Never change who you are. Never be afraid to live and to laugh at yourself. The mistakes you make are only opportunities to learn and grow. Tina Marie I love you so much!

-Love, Mommie Susie and Daddy

You have always been the one I have looked up to. You are my role model and big sister, that I love and admire more than you could ever imagine! You have always been the one that I have gone to for advice and you have never steered me in the wrong direction. You are the best sister I could have ever asked for. You are a wonderful person and a great sister at that! -Love, Sis



Steven & Tawney Smith

Steven And Tawney, you came into this world together and have remained closer ever since. We are proud of both of you and all that you have accomplished. From the moment you were born we knew how lucky we were to have a beautiful daughter. We watched with much pride during beauty pageants and baseball games as you succeeded. I'm sorry dad's not here with you, however he guides you in all your accomplishments. Now that you're graduating and have become a beautiful woman , you will succeed in all you do. You're a very caring person, never lose the smile and personality. I'll always be there for you.

I Love You,

We could not be more proud of you. You have made the journey in life more complete - just by being you. As for your future, it's all about choices - you are the finest person I know, Be yourself, an original is always better than a copy. Remember that your personality has the power to open many doors but it's your character that keeps them open. Don't find fault, find a remedy. Six important words; I admit, I made a mistake. Remember to Never give up. Life is not always fair, it's the journey that counts, so live life to it's fullest, don't let anyone take your pen - and enjoy the ride.

I held him in my arms on the day he was born dreamed about his future
and the things that he would learn
Now he stands before me
a boy almost a man
I find myself reluctant to let go of his hand
But nothing can diminish the pride that's in my heart
Least of all the knowledge that it's time for us to part
So now I give you my only son
the space to find his way
and celebrate the future on his Graduation Day

Shannon Carroll

Shannon The time has come for you to begin your new journey. You are a giving, caring, loving, individual and we couldn't be more proud. Don't ever let life change that. As you leave your high school and enter into college with all its new experiences and chalanges, have fun on this new journey. Remeber it will go fast so hold on tight and enjoy. Take life's challanges and experiences and conquer them because I know you can. I look foward to watching the experiences you will face and to see the adult you have become. Love always Mom-Dad-Dee- Ronnie-Nana

Sarah Snyder

My thoughts,
A fathers dreams come true, blue eyes, a patch of hair, and skin like silk. She is sucking her two middle fingers when she is not crying like an opera. Her hair is growing long; she is even more beautiful today than the day before. She is now riding her bike with no training wheels on the first try. She loves the water and getting others wet. Growing up, learning to challenge, always caring unconditionally, loves her brothers very much. Lives life, loves life, laughs loud, believes in God, believes in herself. It is time to graduate, what happened to time. I am blessed.

I love you Sarah.....Dad

Shannon Wroblewski

You continue to be the joy of my life. You have grown up into such a giving, pretty, and responsible young woman. You have been blessed by god and so have I to be part of your life. You have grown up so fast and I love you so much,

Your dad,
Craig

So quickly have the years slipped by, so swiftly have you gone from the bright curious toddler to a beautifully poised young woman. Be proud of yourself, as I always have been.

Love,
Mom

Danielle Curtis

You're still our little Princess. Love,

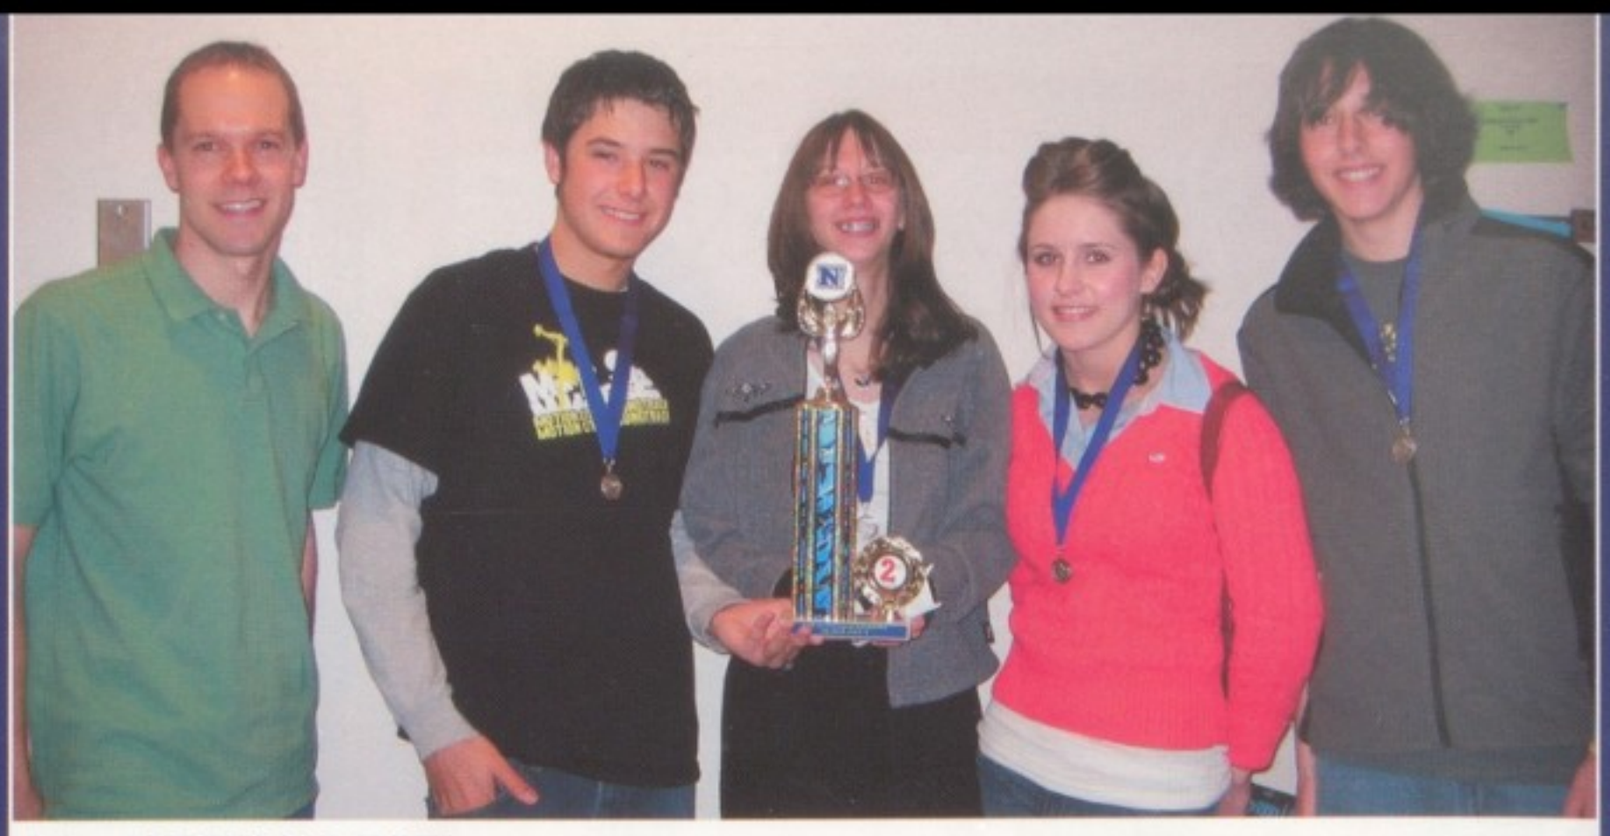
>> TARAH BOWSER

"The Language Bowl was a great learning experience." Spanish 7-8 team.



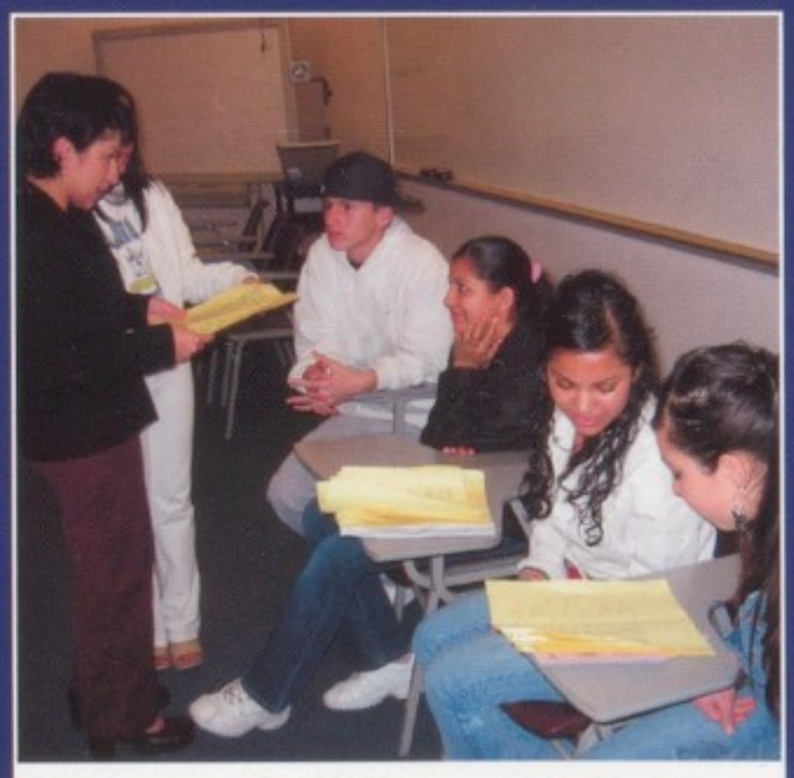
>> SPANISH 5-6 TEAM

Ryan Smith, teacher, Steven Wexell, 2007, Cassie Allen, 2008, Sarah Petrie, 2007, and Aaron Benedetti, 2008 were on the Spanish 5-6 team competing in the first Language Bowl at UNR. The team took second place in their division.

LANGUAGE BOWL

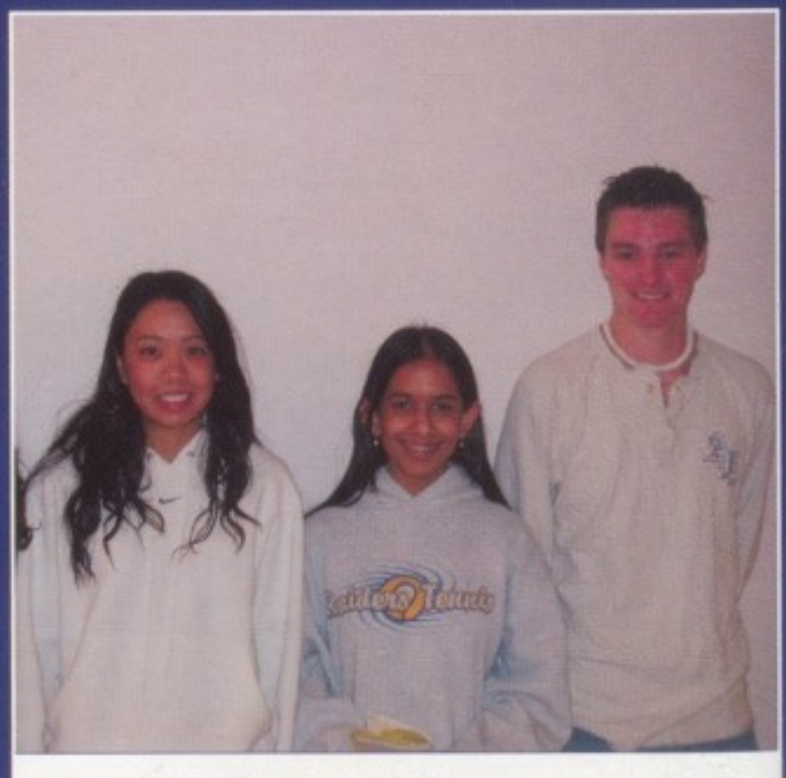
>> STUDYING HARD

Cassie Allen & Aaron Benedetti, 2008, take a few minutes to review material before the team enters the competition room.



>> ONE LAST REVIEW

Mayra Lindberg. teacher, spends a few minutes quizzing the Native Speaker team. Francisco Magana , 2007, Veronica Garcia, 2009, Marisela Nunez, 2007, and Ana Nunez 2009 were on the team.



>> SPANISH 7-8 TEAM

Leslie Parawan, 2006, Rohini Ray, 2007, and Justin Kunert, 2007 take a picture at the Language Bowl.

>> I THINK I KNOW THE ANSWER!

Alixe Bunyard, 2009, Alex Khaliq 2008, and Carissa Mangubat 2009 from the Spanish 3-4 team discuss possible answers to a difficult question.

>> LESLIE PARAWAN, 2006

"I want a re-match... AHORA!!

>> On March 11, 2006, UNR introduced the Lanquage Bowl as a lanquage skills competition between local high schools.

>> CAN YOU BELIEVE THAT?

Students take a break from studying to discuss how the day is going, and what is comming in the next round.

>> JUSTIN KUNERT, 2007

"I thought the Language Bowl was a lot of fun and I hope to do it again next year."

>> WE WON! WE WON!

The Native Speaker team shows off their third place trophy after claiming victory over Damonte Ranch High School.

Colophon

The Galleon was created on Macintosh Computers (1 X-serve, 4 iMac's, 6 eMacs, 1 iBook), using InDesign 2.0, photoshop 6.0 & Jostens Yeartech 2006. It was printed on 80 pound paper with sewn rounded back binding. It consisted of 336 full color pages with a 16 page World Book Insert and a Special Edition DVD. Headlines were typed in AYT Big Fiction, subheadlines were typed in AYT Bassic Class, Captions and stories were typed in Palatino. There are over 5,000 photos included. LifeTouch Photography/Prestige Portriats took all portriat photos. All other pictures in the book were taken by students enrolled in yearbook, using 3 Pentax Film Cameras, a Nikon Cool Pix Digital Camera, and 3 Digital Rebels. Jostens Publishing Company in Visalia, Califoria printed the book. Books originally cost $70.00 and rose in $5.00 incriments until they reached $85.00 in January when sales ended. 11,000 books were sold. Christy Briggs was the adviser. Jennifer Mercer was the editor-in-chief. Stephanie Ercolin, Brittany Hall. Emily Prudden, and Kersti McAllister formed the editorial staff. The staff was made up of (2 semesters) Angel Burton, Danielle Curtis, Todd Doran, Cyndi Gomez, Heather Hughes, Andrea Iori-Tone, Josh Iore-Tone, Rachael Johnson, Kayla Madsen, Jordan Malizia, Alex Merrick, Leah Schebler, Charda Smith, Kassy Taylor, Kristine Tisbe, & Kathrynann Tomeldon

Hurricanes ravage the Gulf Coast region in the fall of 2005, posing an unprecedented test of the United States federal emergency response efforts. Hundreds of lives are lost and thousands are left homeless in the wake of Category 4 Hurricane Katrina, followed by Rita and Wilma. The tragedy spurs contributions of money, talents, homes, food and more in an attempt to raise spirits and rebuild the area.

RISING FROM THE STORMS

August

25 Hurricane Katrina strikes Florida.

28 Mandatory evacuation of both New Orleans and Mississippi is ordered as Katrina becomes a Category 5 storm in the Gulf of Mexico.

29 Downgraded to a Category 4 storm, Katrina hits land. 1.3 million homes and businesses lose electricity in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama. 30 levees are breeched, flooding New Orleans and leaving 100,000 people stranded. After slow government response, civil unrest and looting begins.

31 President Bush surveys the damage.

September

1 30,000 National Guard troops are deployed. Gas prices spike to as high as $5 per gallon.

2 President Bush visits Louisiana and signs a $10.5 billion relief bill. Nearly 154,000 evacuees arrive in Texas.

4 The New Orleans Superdome is evacuated.

6 President Bush and Congress pledge to investigate the flawed disaster response.

9 Government-issued debit cards are distributed to evacuees. The program fails and is ended days later.

12 Michael Brown, head of the Federal Emergency Management Agency, resigns. Flooding is down to 50 percent in New Orleans.

14 New Orleans Mayor Ray Nagin announces a phased repopulation plan.

15 New Orleans begins to reopen. Katrina is named the most destructive hurricane in U.S. history.

20 Louisiana Governor Kathleen Blanco declares a state of emergency as Hurricane Rita strengthens off the coast.

22 Rita hits the Louisiana coast and heads for Texas.

23 Thousands evacuate eastern Texas and the 9th Ward of New Orleans floods once again after levees are overrun.

October

24 Hurricane Wilma hits southwest Florida.
